

INTREPID FLYER WILL TRY AGAIN TO SPAN NATION

Maughan Forced Down in Wyoming Because of Oil Leak.

NOT DISCOURAGED

Confident He Can Make
Coast-to-Coast Trip In Daylight.

Washington, July 20.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan will not be permitted to make another attempt at a dawn-to-dusk flight across the continent until next summer, it was announced officially at the war department this afternoon.

Rock Springs, Wyo., July 20.—Failure! The word was emblazoned on the western sky last night, where Lieutenant Russell Maughan had hoped to write success.

A broken oil gauge, a delicate instrument, forced the intrepid aviator to land here as he was nearing the last leg of his 16-hour flight from New York to San Francisco.

"It was one of those things over which we have no control," said the weary air lieutenant, when he explained the nature of the accident. "It was a broken oil gauge. I noticed it first near North Platte, Neb., but it was not very bad. I thought we had it fixed at Cheyenne, but 20 miles out of Rock Springs it began to leak in bucketfuls, so I thought best to quit."

It was Lieutenant Maughan's second attempt to cross the continent between sunrise and sunset. Two weeks ago after reaching St. Joseph, Mo., he was forced to abandon the flight through a break in his plane in taking off.

The flight that started at Mineola flying field at 4:08 yesterday morning was scheduled to be made in five stages. The first, from Mineola to Dayton, 580 miles, was negotiated in 3 hours and 27 minutes; the second, from Dayton to St. Joseph, Mo., 580 miles, was covered in 3 hours and 45 minutes; and the third, from St. Joseph to Cheyenne, 530 miles, in 3 hours and 26 minutes. So far Maughan was only a few minutes behind his schedule.

At Cheyenne the daring lieutenant expressed his first doubt of success. "I fear it is all over, there's something wrong with the oil," he said. Mechanics rushed forward to examine the plane. They found a leaking oil gauge.

There was a heartbreaking delay of 30 minutes while the mechanics worked.

Maughan was tired, almost stifled from the escaping oil fumes. He rested on a bit of canvas. The mechanics did the best they could. Maughan was impatient to be off. He wanted to deliver a bundle of New York newspapers to the people of San Francisco.

At 3:13 the temporary repairs were completed and Maughan, smiling, waved goodbye to the crowd and flashed out of Cheyenne. "Maughan just passed here, going strong," came a message in a few minutes from Laramie, 50 miles west. Hope ran high. He would make it yet. He was on the fourth lap, from Cheyenne to Salduro, Utah, little desert station, a lap of 470 miles. That covered but one remained, from Salduro to Crissfield, San Francisco, 500 miles.

The plane passed over Rock Springs, 250 miles from Cheyenne. The crowd cheered. Ten minutes later the plane, flying low, slithered down in the Rock Springs landing field.

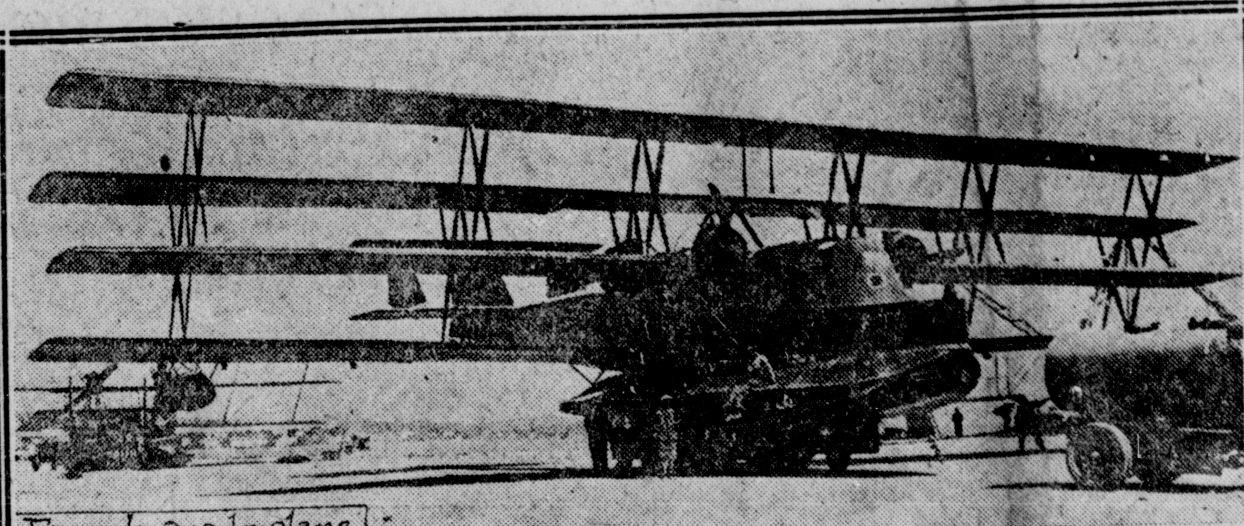

A tired, disappointed aviator dragged himself from the pilot's seat. "I can't make it," he said. "She is leaking too badly. I must give up."

There were no cheers. The crowd realized the battle against time to span the continent had been lost. They spoke encouragingly to him. "You certainly performed a wonderful feat in making it this far. The eyes of the whole country were on you."

And Lieutenant Maughan, frank and honest as he is daring, admitted that it was. "Yes, wasn't it wonderful? I think it was a wonderful thing, even if I didn't complete the flight. But those things happen and it was one of those things over which we have no control."

And whether he will try again is up to Washington. Lieutenant Maughan is a soldier. "I am anxious to renew the attempt and am sure I can make it if they give me another chance," he said. "It is up to Washington."

FRANCE MAINTAINS HER SUPREMACY IN AIR

French Quadcopter.

With the Entente Cordiale near the breaking point because of France's invasion of the Ruhr, England is showing deep alarm at the immense preponderance of France's aerial supremacy. Above is shown the new giant hydroplane recently completed for the French Navy and successfully tried out at Saint Raphael. The airship has four wings, instead of the conventional two, and is equipped with four engines that give her 1,000 horsepower. More ships of this type are under construction.

Who Pays The Taxes? Evidence That Much Comes From Small Means, Seen

BY SIDNEY THATCHER

We stood in line at the Court House today to pay our taxes.

Many others also stood in line or loitered in the lobby of the Treasurer's office where the tax-paying is done. For Friday is the last day of the June tax collection.

And as we stood in line we studied those waiting to pay their taxes at the window. Some looked as if it were no easy thing to pay taxes and we saw many who looked as though they were paying with an effort.

One old fellow was a farmer and he was down at the heels and his trousers were frayed at the bottom. He had seen better days, a woman, whose hat bore evidence of having seen many summers and there was one whose carefully brushed widow's weeds displayed long wear. All had the appearance of parting with money they could ill afford to pay.

And we decided that it would have been well for the public officials, who spend the taxpayer's money to have been there. Seeing these taxpayers—the man with the frayed trousers, the woman with last summer's hat and the widow with the worn out weeds and all the others of us, they would have said:

"Here are people handing their money over to us to spend and none of them look rich. This man needs a new suit, that one a new pair of shoes. This woman wears her old hat and the little woman in black must delay purchasing a new dress." And then the officials might have asked themselves, "Are we giving them their money's worth? Do we spend any of their money needlessly? Do we hold expenses down so that these poor people's taxes may be made as light as possible?"

Some paid their taxes with paper and silver money—cash carefully saved in slowly multiplying savings accounts; in pots, socks and under mattresses. Few in the crowd paid in checks. They were people who came twice to the Treasurer's window—the first time to learn the amount that they might avoid drawing out too much of their hard earned savings.

They doled their money out bill by bill and coin and by coin, as if the giving were hard. Then they went away to commence saving for their December taxes.

"We can save only for taxes," said one, as she turned from the window.

It would have made a taxpayer very solemn to look upon such tax payers.

And so it came our turn and we passed our money through the wicket and wished it farewell and a useful life.

"Go on, good money," we said "Go into the salary of the County and City officials and tell them you came from a poor taxpayer, who is anxious that he might pay his taxes, that he remembers this when he considers spending any public money."

"Go on, good money, into the salary of the County Commissioners and tell them 'Your salary comes from a poor taxpayer, so why shouldn't you cut down expenses and hold down the tax rate?'"

"Go into the salary of the City officials and tell them you came out of the pocket of a taxpayer who wants to be sure the payment will bring better health conditions in Xenia. Go into the salaries of all county office holders and bring them a message from the taxpayers, asking for purity in operation and economy in expenditures in all their offices. So long, good money, so long!"

We paid, and the woman with last summer's hat, and the man with the frayed trousers and she who wore widow's weeds, had also paid, and gone on.

But their places at the windows were already taken by other taxpayers. They were of like type. There was an old man who took his tax money carefully from an old black purse with brass clasps, and there was a woman prematurely old with children at her heels and another who bore marks of privation and suffering.

These were the taxpayers.

And we knew then that seeing these people the officials in the Treasurer's office must feel this same, but they must collect what others spend. They have no choice. But other public officials see only the taxpayer's money. Money, and more money. They spend it and yet they know not from whence it comes. If there be in all Greene County any official who does not know that his very salary comes largely from those who can barely meet the excessive tax assessments which are now in vogue, he is invited to go to the lobby of the Treasurer's office and see the taxpayers themselves as they pay.

FRENCH MUST LEAVE FIRST IS ANSWER OF GERMAN LEADERS

London, July 20.—The German embassy was instructed today to inform the British that the Berlin government cannot order cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr unless French evacuation is guaranteed by the Allies.

Germany suggested that, if the same reparations offer of the Berlin government was accepted, "mortgage" guaranteeing indemnity payments would be delivered within six weeks. However, Berlin would expect evacuation by French and Belgian troops to commence as soon as the mortgages were delivered.

There was another meeting of the cabinet at noon when the British reparations note again was considered.

Premier Stanley Baldwin was hopeful that the draft of the British note could be finished up today.

London, July 20.—It was understood in semi-official quarters that the British reparations note was dispatched this afternoon. According to word from Paris, it will be considered by the French cabinet tomorrow.

The government has exercised great secrecy regarding both the contents of the note and its delivery. It is known, however, that it requests an international conference to consider the reparations and Ruhr questions.

DAUGHERTY CALLED IN MORSE TRIAL

Washington, July 20.—The Morse conspiracy trial took on an added national significance today when it was announced that Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty would be summoned next week by the defense to tell what he knew of the wartime transactions of Charles W. Morse, and the relations of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation and the United States shipping board.

Defense attorneys have not revealed just what they plan to bring out by the attorney general's testimony, but they have had a subpoena issued for him and mailed to the United States marshal at Columbus, O. for service.

FOUR ARE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Logansport, Ind., July 20.—Four of the crew of five on a Pennsylvania switching train crew, were killed early today near Crawfordville, Indiana, when the locomotive and three cars loaded with coal, struck a derail and pitched over a 20 foot embankment. Three bodies were taken from beneath 150 tons of coal.

WOMEN TO HONOR ANOTHER'S MEMORY

Seneca Falls, N. Y., July 20.—The pilgrimage to the grave of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer of pioneers among the suffragists, who perhaps did more for the women of the world than any other individual, will form the climax of the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the first equal rights meeting ever held in this country. The celebration, put on by the National Woman's party, is in progress here today. The pilgrimage will take place today. The pilgrimage will take place today. The pilgrimage will take place today.

J. H. STRALEY IS DEAD AT HOME

Joseph H. Straley, of Jeffersonville, well known in Fayette and Greene Counties, died at his home, Thursday, according to word received by relatives here.

Mr. Straley was former president of the Citizens Bank at Jeffersonville. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. E. E. Williams, of Cedarville, and a son, Herman Straley, of near Cedarville. Mr. Straley was an uncle of Mrs. C. O. Rankin, of East Main Street, and a great-uncle of Sheriff Morris Sharp.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon from the M. E. Church, at Jeffersonville, with interment at that place.

HARDING SOLUTION OF TROUBLE ASKED

Westerville, O. July 20.—President Harding may be called upon to decide the Westerville postoffice tangle which resulted from charges preferred against several employees by Postmistress Mary E. Lee and their subsequent dismissal or transfer. The Business Men's Association threatens to go direct to the president while the employees are preparing an appeal to the civil service commission.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR OHIO FIRM

WANT PUBLICITY ON TAX RETURNS TO AID REVENUE

LaFollette to Introduce Bill
To This Effect in Next
Congress

Washington, July 20.—A determined fight will be made in the next Congress by a coalition of Democrats and Republican "progressives" for an amendment to the revenue act, requiring publicity on all income tax returns, it was learned here today.

Senator LaFollette, Republican, of Wisconsin, has served notice that at the opening of Congress in December he will introduce a bill to accomplish this. Such legislation is regarded as a direct attack on large taxpayers, who are now shielded in every possible way by the government, through a rule holding that tax matters are "confidential."

Internal revenue bureau officials today frankly said that if the provision forbidding them to discuss income tax matters were removed by Congress, it probably would open up new and almost unbelievable larger sources of revenue which is now being withheld from the government.

MOB VIOLENCE IN ADAMS COUNTY IS FEARED—USE GUARD

West Union, O., July 20.—Fearing mob violence, officers have placed extra guards around the Adams County Jail to protect two men charged with murder and one already convicted of a similar crime. The prisoners are John Spires and Frank Moore, charged with the slaying of Robert E. Morris, of Cincinnati, near here recently. Morris was killed while riding in his automobile with two men and robbed of $1,500.

The other prisoner is Robert F. Davis, convicted of murdering George Webb, near Seaman, Ohio.

Spires and Moore deny any connection with the murder of Morris.

Placing of the extra guards came at the time when reports came that a mob would come from Seaman in an effort to get Davis and also Moore and Spires.

Davis was convicted in Common Pleas Court here and sentenced to be electrocuted.

CITY BUS SERVICE IS DISCONTINUED

Columbus, Ohio, July 20.—City bus service in Columbus will be discontinued by the Ohio Motor Bus Company, according to C. L. Bowler, of Newark, president of the company today.

Mr. Bowler is former general manager of the American Motor Truck Company of Newark, a subsidiary of the R. L. Dollings Company, for which a receivership has been asked in common pleas court here. He denied that the Ohio Motor Bus Company and the Dollings Company are connected.

TRADE MARK CASE IN FEDERAL COURT

Cincinnati, O., July 20.—The "White Rock" trade mark case between the Akron Beverage and Cold Storage Company and the White Rock Mineral Springs Company, of Waukesha, Wis., today reached the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here from the Cleveland U. S. District Court of Judge D. C. Westenhaver. The Akron concern alleges that it had used it on beer before prohibition came and only on near beer now, and had never used it on any such beverages as put out by the Wisconsin corporation.

LETTER CARRIERS URGE NEW HANDLING OF APPROPRIATIONS

Bucyrus, O., July 20.—Resolutions calling for the removal of postoffice appropriations from Congress and demanding they be placed in the hands of the Postmaster General were adopted by the Rural Letter Carriers' Association, of Ohio, which held its annual convention here today.

The postal representatives held that the Postoffice Department is self sustaining and the Postmaster general should have the right to expend the money.

Van Wert was selected as the place of the 1924 convention.

Old officers were re-elected as follows:

A. P. Plang, of Pleasantville, president; Isaac Cult, of Columbiana, vice president; Albert Stultz, of Gibsonburg, secretary; Isaac Hill, Orient, treasurer; W. D. Brown, of Washington, D. C. attorney, and G. D. Irwin, of Wilmington, H. E. Royer, of Lewisville and I. E. Simmons, of Cambridge, executive committee.

TWO INJURED WHEN ENGINE IS DITCHED

Toledo, O., July 20.—Engineer Leo Uiguer and Fireman Jacob Cleveland are in a hospital here today, suffering serious injuries as a result of a Michigan Central freight wreck early today. The men escaped instant death by leaping from the cab as the engine went into a ditch and rolled down an embankment. That the entire train was not derailed was deemed little short of a miracle, railroad officials said.

The engine and tender for a long time obstructed the main track. Opening of the switch was blamed on a group of boys seen playing around the tracks.

FAVOR UNIFORM TRAFFIC LAWS

Youngstown, O., July 20.—Ohio Police Chiefs' association went on record in favor of uniform national traffic laws. The resolution was unanimously passed following an address by Fred Caley, manager of the Cleveland Automobile club. A uniform federal law protecting motorists from being arrested in other states for offenses which would be legal in their own state and city also was urged by Caley.

WIVES OF TWO FIRM MEMBERS OF LEBANON CALLED TO TESTIFY

Sequel to Bankruptcy of Elbinger Shoe Manufacturing Company Written as Women Ordered to Explain Extensive Realty Deals

Cincinnati, O. July 20.—The wives of two of the firm members of the bankrupt Elbinger Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Lebanon, O. will be examined by Attorney Stricker for the creditors, as regards certain extensive realty deals participated in by firm members, previous to the concern going into bankruptcy on account of the alleged part played by these women, whose names city and country property appeared at the time of the firm's embarrassment. The original capitalization of the company was $50,000 but this was increased to $300,000 then to half a million dollars and finally to $1,300,000. It is charged that dividends not earned were paid by the firm heads and at the same time considerable costly realty was purchased by the wives of firm members. Elias Elbinger testified yesterday before U. S. Bankruptcy Commissioner C. T. Greve that his salary was increased by jumps from $1,120 the first year of the company's existence to $5,000 then to $25,000 and finally $30,000 without the corporation apparently prospering to an extent to justify the same.

'NEED PROTECTION'

Receivership Needed Declares Attorney for Stockholders During Hearing

Columbus, O. July 20.—Three receivers for the R. L. Dollings Company, fiscal brokers, and the International Note and Mortgage Company, both Ohio corporations, were named by Judge Duncan, in Common Pleas Court today. They are: William C. Willard, vice president of the Huntington National Bank of Columbus, representing the court, Paul De Long, of Columbus, for the stockholders and Samuel A. Kinnear, of Columbus, for the company. Attorney Fred N. Sinks, of Columbus, was appointed receiver for the C. and F. Shoe Company, of Columbus, and placed under $50,000 bond. This company was financed by the Dollings corporation, according to the charge. The court was expected to instruct the receivers to immediately collect and administer all funds of the two companies and to make a report to the court on the assets.

The receivers were placed under $50,000 bond each, separate bonds being required for their connection with both the Dollings and the Mortgage Companies.

This action was taken by Dollings representatives "without admitting the allegations in petitions of stockholders."

It was specifically pointed out by attorneys that the action today involves an application for appointment of receivers for the Dollings Company of Ohio and the International Note and Mortgage Company of Ohio only. Application for receivership of subsidiaries will be acted on separately, while similar actions against subsidiaries and branches in Pennsylvania and Indiana will be taken up in those states, if at all.

Other companies and subsidiaries are involved only as the R. L. Dollings Company is a holding organization," it was declared. "The mere application for receivership for the Dollings Company to all intents and purposes puts it out of business," attorneys said.

Judge Duncan issued an order adding to the 13 original plaintiffs, 15 additional stockholders, who hold stock of about $200,000 face value. Eleven of the new plaintiffs are women.

Columbus, O., July 20.—Attorneys for the R. L. Dollings Company, fiscal brokers of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and its subsidiaries did not contest the appointment of a receiver when they appeared before Common Pleas Judge Robert F. Duncan today on charges contained in a demand for receivership filed by stockholders.

Thousands of stockholders of the Dollings Company and its subsidiaries "need the protection of the courts," representatives of the corporation admitted before Judge Duncan.

When Lowry F. Sater, of Columbus, counsel for stockholders, holding $1,500 in Dollings stock, told the court, "nobody who has ever been connected with the company should be permitted to be the receiver," a crowd of several hundred stockholders cheered.

Judge Duncan issued a sharp reprimand and threatened to clear the courtroom if any further demonstrations occurred.

Sater continued, contending that if the statements made in the petition of stockholders were not true the Dollings Company would be fighting the case.

"Their admissions disclose the need of a receivership," he said, "and verify all allegations against the company."

Attorneys for the plaintiffs suggested that Paul De Long, of Columbus, manager of the Pirrung estate be appointed as one of the receivers. The Dollings representatives want Samuel A. Kinnear, of Columbus, a former city service director and postmaster named.

Attorney C. C. Morton, for stockholders, introduced a motion asking that 15 more stockholders holding about $200,000 stock of the Dollings Company be added to the list of plaintiffs. Action has not been taken by the court.

Besides the Dollings Companies proper, the International Note and Mortgage Company, Ohio corporation and subsidiaries including the Franklin Brick and Tile Company, of Columbus, American Motor Truck Company, of Newark, Champion Engineering Company, Kenton, Mathews, Engineering Company, Sandusky, Dayton, Cording Devices Company, Dayton, Burton Townsends Company, of Zanesville; North Carolina Farm Company of Columbus and the Florida Farms and Industries Company of Columbus, are involved.

GERMAN RESCUES FRENCH SOLDIERS

Cologne, July 20.—Forgetting the general hatred felt by Germans towards the French when he saw life endangered, Max Fladt, an innkeeper at Kehl, plunged into the Rhine and saved two French soldiers from drowning. When he was thanked personally by the French general commanding this area, and asked if he desired anything as a reward, Fladt pleaded for the lives of the seven Germans recently sentenced to death on charges of sabotage. The general promised him he would forward his petition for mercy to the French government.

The French have confiscated a number of locomotives and much rolling stock of the Rhine metal works at Dusseldorf and have seized 30,000,000 marks consigned to the reichsbank at Dortmund.

The two were convicted of murdering Mrs. Crudelle's first husband, Frank Nitti, a farmer, near Stickney, Ill., on July 22, 1922. The conviction promises to cause trouble in some Chicago families, the wife of one of the jurors already having declared she will leave him if the woman is hanged. The jury which found Mrs. Crudelle guilty was composed, back row, left to right, of T. C. Murtough, Charles A. Ludwig, W. Frank Gamble, Martin Jacobs, Fred Burnette and C. K. Barnhisel. Front row, left to right: Harry Haser, William J. Fenwell, Henry Ludwig, R. J. Gould, P. Howard and Henry Hetzke.

SURPLUS OF WHEAT IN RUSSIA SEEN AS MORE TROUBLE

Washington, July 19.—Magnus Johnson's victory in Minnesota has the two old parties laboring under political shell shock, observers here say.

Groping about amid the confusion of the resulting situation, Republican and Democratic leaders are more upset and worried than at any time since the Bull Moose uprising in 1912. The Democrats appear to veteran observers to be in far worse condition than in that memorable fight. Then the Roosevelt revolt was against the conservative old guard in the Republican party. Wilson swept into the white house, a minority president, as the result. The present revolt, which showed its strength last November and now demonstrates its constantly increasing power, is against conservatism and reactionism in both of the old organizations.

The farmer-labor uprising in Minnesota apparently is the outgrowth of the distress which has had the farmers in its grip for the last several years. Now Senator Brookhart returns from abroad and announces Russia will have a crop surplus to export. He had a 10 weeks' study of agricultural conditions in Europe.

A large Russian surplus coming into competition with the surpluses of other countries, which must have world markets to insure their prosperity, can only add to the demoralization among American farmers, who are forced to see the price of their wheat, for example, fixed on the basis of the small part of their crop shipped to Liverpool.

Republican leaders at the capital received word that wheat in Kansas is bringing the lowest price since 1909, 14 years ago. No. 1 wheat, the best grade of the winter crop, is selling for 79 and 80 cents a bushel. This is far less than it costs to produce it. Any such condition as this existing during the approaching campaign, it is frankly admitted, would sweep the party in power out of office.

William G. McAdoo, Democratic presidential possibility, had lunch with Woodrow Wilson, his father-in-law here.

The former president, according to McAdoo, was in excellent spirits and showed considerable improvement in health since McAdoo's last visit to the Wilson home two months ago.

Now she is under arrest on a burglary charge. She told the police that she married too young and that a combination of poverty and youth was too much for her to bear.

BOARD CONFIRMS COUNTY DIRECTOR OF NORMAL SCHOOL

Appointment of Miss Susanne M. Koehler, as county normal director for the training school established in connection with Cedarville College and Cedarville High School was confirmed by the County Board of Education at its meeting, Thursday.

Miss Koehler holds two degrees and has done graduate work along her chosen line. The State Department of Education recommends her highly as do educators where she has conducted a normal school for the last three years, according to County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Aultman.

Confirmation of Miss Koehler's appointment completes arrangements for this state supported county normal school which brings teacher training opportunities to those who propose to take up teaching as a profession. The school will also mean a saving to these embryo teachers of $500 on the first year's preparation, according to Superintendent Aultman.

THE DEATH OF A GREAT EDITOR.

It is only natural that like craftsmen take more interest in each other than they do in the rest of mankind. Hence this writer has always felt drawn towards fellow editors, even if he knew but little about them. And if the editor be one who has only "to furnish his 'copy' once per month, instead of daily as we have to, we still sympathized with him in the feeling that his longing would be to give "what his readers want."

There are many monthly magazines in this country vieing with each other for public patronage. One of these is only a few years old, the "American Magazine," whose publication office is at our neighboring city of Springfield, Ohio, which has secured an enormous circulation in its short life. "There is a reason," as the Battle Creek man says. It monthly gives to its patrons "what the people want." It makes a specialty of telling stories of human interest, and to a great extent the rise of poor young men to positions of influence by their own exertion. The deep down "catch" of this lies in the feeling that "if another can forge ahead unaided so may I." A stimulant to ambition.

We were pained to read this week of the death of Mr. John M. Siddall, editor of the American Magazine at his home in the East, and that the burial would be at his boyhood home, Oberlin, Ohio, on Wednesday of this week. We feel that the world has lost something of importance, has let slip from it one who had been able to give it what it wanted—a man who had the instinct to help others by telling them stories that would encourage them on the rugged pathway of life.

Immediately we went to our "Who's Who" to find its brief history of the dead editor. It is commonplace enough, as is the life of most of us. But we felt deep down in our heart—all right, he had done what he could to smooth life's pathway for his fellow men, and what more can any one do? The record is that he did it to the very last. Brave spirit, we shall miss you, and we shall only hope for more like you to bless the world.

AN OLD ALASKAN ROW.

The President is not being permitted to rest, loaf and "invite his soul" in Alaska. He has found a Territory losing in population, considerably embittered and its parts at war with each other.

Would-be promoters gnash their teeth when they contemplate the Alaskan riches in timber and minerals fenced in back of the barbed wire of governmental regulation and conservation policies. The salmon-fishing Indians do not like the restrictions laid upon them by Secretary Hoover's well-meant regulations and fishing contracts. Almost everybody in Alaska seems unhappy. It is an unhappy land.

The President is finding it so. He goes away for a rest and a look-see and within a week a bitter Alaskan feud is marring his visit. He has run into an ugly, pestiferous and politically dangerous row that has been smoldering for years. It is an old quarrel that began when the Guggenheim interests went into Alaska and that flared up in the memorable Ballinger-Pinchot feud. It is now centering about the towns of Seward and Anchorage and runs along the new rail line all the way from Seward to Fairbanks.

The new railroad is unsuccessful. It was planned and seventy-three miles of it built by John Ballaine. He failed and the line went to the Guggenheims. They sold it to the Government for $1,000,000, and it took $4,500,000 to make it usable. On top of that we have poured in $50,000,000 and run the road on through the Matanuska coal beds up to Fairbanks. Ballaine had started the town of Seward on Resurrection Bay with its 100 fathoms of water.

Now the charge is made by Ballaine that the "Seattle crowd," backed by the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, is bent on destroying Seward as a port, moving the capital from Juneau to nine-year-old Anchorage and making that town the port, the capital and the real metropolis. The Guggenheims are charged with hampering the work of the Government and duping the United States in divers ways. Rate discriminations are charged, and altogether there appear to be the makings of a first-class row.

In 1921 all this was about to be aired, but the hearings on proposed consolidation of Alaskan bureaus was rather hurriedly adjourned. The quarrel was carefully smothered at that time, only to break out again as soon as the presidential party set foot in the Territory.

Secretaries Hoover, Work and Wallace will, of course, do their best to patch it up. It is, however, so badly mixed, crossed and tangled with financial rows, political feuds, personal hatreds, regional quarrels and official jealousies that it may be unpatchable.

Hearings are now under way, but they may do no more than let enough air into the smoldering fire to make it blaze higher. If these fail to bring peace, agreement and understanding, all the pressure, political and otherwise, that can be brought to bear cannot keep the lid from flying off the Alaskan row in the sixty-eighth Congress—Public Ledger.

sterilized jars after you have cut each peach in half and removed pit. Pour over them, in a jar, a hot medium thick sirup made by boiling three quarts of granulated sugar and two quarts of water together for ten minutes. Partially seal, process in boiling water for 16 minutes, completely seal, and store.

Peach Marmalade: Remove skins from peaches as above described. Then halve, stone and weigh the fruit. For every pound, set aside a pound of sugar, to be added later. Put the weighed fruit-pulp (with a few kernels, for flavor) into an agate bottle which has been moistened inside to prevent burning and heat the fruit slowly, mashing with a wooden spoon. Stir to avoid burning, and when soft and thick it is time to add the sugar. Mix well and boil slowly, until the juice is jelly-like when you test it by putting a few drops on a plate. Then turn the marmalade into hot, sterilized jelly glasses and cover, when cold, with melted paraffine.

Pear-Pineapple Quarters: Pare, core and quarter four quarts of pears. Pare two large pineapples and remove eyes. Put both the pears and the pineapples through your food-chopper and place the mixture in a porcelain-lined kettle. Add eight cups (four pounds) of granulated sugar and boil till clear. Seal in glasses when cold, like jelly. Very delicious.

To Can Bartlett Pears: Pare, halve and core the fruit. Pack it closely in hot, sterilized glass jars, adding one tablespoon of lemon juice to each quart jar. Pour over the pears a medium-thick sirup made by boiling two quarts of water and three quarts of sugar together for ten minutes. Have this sirup come to within one-fourth inch of jar-top then adjust sterilized glass covers over new rubbers which have been dipped swiftly into hot water, and partially seal the jar; process it for 20 minutes in boiling water which rises almost to jar-top, then completely seal, invert to test for leaks, and store.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

I've seen some lovely sights, I think—
A rosebud bursting into pink.
A distant hill top drenched with gold,
A pretty sight I'll show to you!
Of blossoms in the early spring—
But there can be no lovelier thing
Among the beauties Nature hath
Than little Janet in her bath.

Come upstairs now with me and see
Our baby on her mother's knee,
And watch this glad performance through—
A pretty sight I'll show to you!
Fairer than any landscape scene
Or silver brook or meadow green,
I'll show you dimpled legs and arms

And babyhood with all its charms.
I'm sorry for the man who hath
Not seen a baby in her bath.
For he is old and he is wise,
He does not know the charm which lies
In tiny bodies, plump and sweet
And little toes on rosy feet.
Nor does he know how fair to see
A baby in her bath can be.

I've tired of distant hills afar,
I've wearied of the morning star;
Familiar with a silver brook,
I've never turned my head to look,
But when the mother says "It's time
To bathe the baby," I will climb
The stair and stand about to see
The loveliest sight on earth to me.

LET US GO OUT TO PLAY

Work is the great healer, the great builder, the one antidote for worry, disappointment, loss, betrayal, loneliness and unhappiness.

But behind it is something exceedingly rich—play!

Let us go out to play. We will roam through the rolling fields, past playing children in front yards, thrill with the beauty of pictures in trees, flowers, rocks, valleys, rivers.

Let us go out to play—and in our favorite books find adventures that will lift us on our toes and lead us around the world.

Let us find a heart somewhere and play in it. Perhaps it is filled with ache and want. Let us bring to it sunshine and cheer. By giving it companionship and understanding, light will stream in and then play will be the order of the day—and happiness the reward.

Let us go out to play. Our muscles are tired from long inactivity, our blood slow from too little air and sun.

Even as we work in our offices, may we not hesitate for a moment every once in a while—and in our thoughts—run out to play for a brief spell.

This human machine of yours is no different from those that are made by it. It must be kept loose and free and oiled by frequent play.

Let us go out to play. And then come back to work, happy and refreshed.

ESTIMATE 75,000

WILL SEE LEONARD AND TENDLER FIGHT

New York, July 20.—More than $500,000 will be paid by boxing enthusiasts to see the Benny Leonard-Leo Tendler championship bout next Monday night and Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the contest today told why fight fans will pay this amount.

"There will be three distinct classes of people who will help to make up this amount," the promoter explained. "First there will be the Leonard following and there is a veritable legion of Leonard admirers. There are rabid Leonard fans. Next when the name of Leonard is mentioned. This following will be up to the fight strong."

"Then there is the crowd that always goes to a fight in the expectation of seeing a championship change hands. Reports have appeared from time to time that Leonard has retrogressed and is not the invincible fighter he once was. The element of chance plays a large part in sports. And thousands will view the contest on the chance that Tendler will put one over and win the title."

"Third there is that large crowd of lovers of boxing who will attend any fight which promises an exhibition of the manly art such as Leonard and Tendler no doubt will give. And there you are."

Fully 75,000 are expected to view the fight. This will be the largest gathering of fans ever assembled to see a fight in New York state. Hoyle's Thirty Acres, across the river in Jersey City has played to larger houses but no fight in this state has played to a 75,000 crowd. Tickets, Johnson said, are going extremely fast with the interest in the bout even greater than he had anticipated.

The advance sale has already reached close to the $300,000 mark. He said the receipts would easily come to the half million mark. Betting odds of 2 to 1 favor Leonard, with 1 to 2 that he will knock out Tendler.

FARMER HAS TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

"I don't think anybody ever suffered more pain than I have. Twice I was operated for gall stones and a third operation was advised. A friend in Iowa wrote me how he was cured by taking May's Wonderful Remedy. I took a bottle on his advice with good results and have also taken the full course. My pains are all gone and I feel I am permanently cured." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Miss Petrona La Rosa, of Evanston, Ill., may be the goal toward which Luis Angel Firpo, "Wild Bull of the Pampas," is aiming in his fighting career. She went to school with the

RESERVES TO MEET MIDDLETOWN TEAM ON LOT HERE SUNDAY

Fans who journey to the Cincinnati Avenue lot Sunday to see the Xenia Reserves and the Middletown Interstates hook up in a baseball game will see a struggle worth while as both teams are evenly matched.

The Reserves so far have played eight games, winning four and losing three while they were tied once. The Reserves have a nifty ball nine and will give the Interstates a real argument.

Owens who holds down the first sack for Manager Jesse Chambliss's outfit takes care of the initial bag in first class manner. Owens is a southpaw and makes some mighty good stops at the first sack. He also bails well and can generally be depended upon to clout the ball in a pinch.

Manager Chambliss has also added M. Leachey to his outfit, and he will more than likely play at short. McDonnell and Ackerman are also new additions to the team. The former is a pitcher while the latter is an outfielder.

Just who will pitch Sunday's game is not known but more than likely McDonnell will get the call. Wilson will catch while Owens will be found at first, E. Leachey at second, M. Leachey or Milburn at short, Ciphers or Botorff at third, while Shaw will be found in left field Haley or Ary in center and "Dewey" Ackerman in right.

The Reserves have been working hard for this game and all the play.

DOCTOR BAEHR RESIGNS.

Columbus, July 19.—Dr. Edmund M. Baehr, superintendent of the department of juvenile research, has submitted his resignation to John T. Harper, director of public welfare, to become effective Oct. 1. This date was set by Dr. Baehr in order to make it more convenient for Director Harper to select his successor.

When Your Gas Bill Goes Up

Have a look and see if it isn't too much for what you are getting. Probably you can cut it materially without inconvenience to yourself.

Matches are cheaper than gas. When you are not using gas, why let it burn?

You cannot heat a liquid hotter than its boiling point. When the contents of your cooking utensil begin to boil, turn down the flame. Your money pays for the unnecessary heat.

Look For Leaks

Then have a look for gas leaks. Government engineers say about one foot of every six delivered to households is wasted in little leaks. They don't do anybody any good—and one dollar in every six is worth saving.

Maybe you are using appliances not originally intended for gas burning. That is expensive. They cannot deliver more than a third efficiency.

Namy Abood, who lives with his family across the street, heard the racket in the Audy home and joined the fight. A small hatchet was brought into play.

"CAP" STUBBS—That's Where Cap Gets All His Ability

BROOKHART URGES RECOGNITION OF SOVIET REGIME

Washington, July 20.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart on reaching Washington went directly to the state department and urged Secretary Hughes to recognize the soviet government of Russia.

Senator Brookhart suggested as a preliminary step an effort on the part of the United States to revive trade relations, even before full diplomatic intercourse is resumed.

The senator in a half hour conference with Secretary Hughes made a full report on his personal investigation of the condition of the Russian government, declaring it to be the most stable government in Europe and its people happy and contented. Brookhart also gave Mr. Hughes the benefit of his 10 weeks' study of conditions in other countries in Europe, particularly France.

Senator Brookhart was understood to have taken up the question of an extra session with Secretary Hughes, urging its necessity upon the secretary and suggesting that he join in the request to the president for the call.

"If the administration turns a deaf ear to the cries of the farmers and defies the progressive forces," Senator Brookhart said in an interview, "control of the senate organization by the regular Republicans, the Old Guard, will be overturned when congress meets in December. The progressives hold the balance of power, which makes this upset possible through a combination with the Democrats."

Commenting on the political outlook as it now looks on the basis of Magnus Johnson's rout of the Republican and Democratic candidates in Minnesota, Senator Brookhart nominated Harding for president and Senator Underwood for vice president on a "stand pat ticket," and paid his respects to other presidential aspirants, including McAdoo and Ford, declaring he was for "Kenyon or bust." The senator said: "They might nominate Harding for president and Underwood for president on a 'stand pat ticket.' Then they could get all the stannifers, conservatives and reactionaries into one bunch. We would see that it was only a very small bunch."

"McAdoo doesn't strike me as much of a hope for the people," Senator Brookhart said in response to questions concerning the Democratic aspirant. "He would not draw many progressive votes. He would not even have a chance against Harding. With Harding and McAdoo running on the Republican and Democratic tickets, neither would have a chance. In that situation Ford would ride in on a third party ticket."

"What is your best judgment of Ford's presidential possibilities?" the senator was asked. He replied without hesitation: "Ford is a very benevolent autocrat. There are a lot of things about him that I'm a little shy of. Kenyon would suit me much better."

FAIR BOARD WILL MEET SATURDAY FOR ARRANGEMENTS

The Greene County Fair Board will meet Saturday afternoon at one o'clock at the Fair Grounds. Anyone wishing to consult with the board is invited to meet with it at that time.

The poultry department, always a strong feature of the local Fair, will be especially interesting this year. Thomas Faulkner, in charge of the department, has been striving for years to make local and honest showing of birds an outstanding feature of the department and has drawn a set of rules that will give much satisfaction to local exhibitors. This department has also added an egg law offering premiums for the best dozen brown and the best dozen white eggs, any kind.

Grant Miller, who is in charge of the spacious new Art Hall is planning for exhibits that will bring delight to the women of the county. This building will also house some of the Boys' and Girls Club work.

N. B. Lewis, a new member of the board will have charge of the Vegetable Hall. The one hundred bushel corn club show and his revision of the grain department will add interest to the department exhibit.

The Boys' and Girls' Club, in charge of F. B. Turnbull and James H. Hawkins, will make a show well worth going miles to see. Fair officials say. There will be two classes, a junior yearling and senior calf class, with the best breeds competing, the Herefords, the Shorthorns and the Angus. The total prizes given by the Fair Board, the Breeders' Association and individuals will total over $500.00. At the close of the show the calves will be sold at public auction.

The Grange exhibit in charge of W. J. Engle, Joseph T. Hutchison and Joseph H. Smith will have seven granges competing for prizes aggregating $385.00. The Grange section is always one of the centers of interest on the grounds and will no doubt draw many grangers from beyond the county lines.

The Inter-City Quartet Club headed by Mr. Roy Ary promises to be a feature for those who enjoy this sort of thing.

From the number of inquiries that are coming in, Wayne Smith of New Burlington and Nat Hunter of Jamestown, who have charge of the displays of autos and machinery, are expecting the largest exhibit ever arranged on the grounds.

Mr. Ernest Ireland, who is in charge of the gates, is making plans for the systematic parking of cars so as to eliminate all confusion. The new draw gate into the center field will be a great help in handling the machines, and in systematizing the parking, it is claimed.

ANNUAL REUNION OF OHIO MARYLAND ASSOCIATION AUG. 15

J. A. Piper of this city is a member of the executive board of the Maryland Association of Ohio which will hold its twenty-sixth annual reunion at Forest Park, Dayton, Wednesday, August 15.

A committee on arrangements has prepared an interesting program which will begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, suntime.

A business session will be held in the morning, including reports of the secretary and treasurer and nomination of officers and the making up of a report on Necrology.

The afternoon session will consist of songs, music and an address on "Maryland" by Prof. A. E. Claggett, superintendent of Oakland School. There will be short talks by members and the annual election of officers. Members will bring basket luncheons. The Park is located two miles north of Dayton on the Covington pike.

Samuel G. Claggett is president and James H. Bamber secretary of the Association.

WHITFIELD LOSES AGAIN.

Cleveland, July 20.—John L. Whitfield will not be taken outside Cuyahoga county to stand trial for the murder of Patrolman Griffin. Common Pleas Judge Baer overruled defense attorneys in their motion for a change of venue on the grounds of prejudice. Whitfield's trial is to open next Monday.

WORK TO GO AHEAD

That the planting of zinnias will go far toward improving the appearance of vacant lots is demonstrated in the appearance of the lots in the former Ormsby plot on North Detroit street, where Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelble have planted a hedge of zinnias along the lots. The flowers are now in full bloom and show a great variety of brilliant colored blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Kelble invite all interested in zinnias to come and see the bed.

INCREASE OF 400 PER-CENT IS SHOWN AT PLAYGROUNDS

An increase in the weekly attendance at local playgrounds during one month of over 400 per cent is announced by the Community Recreation Association, as an indication of the popularity of the movement in this city.

Figures showing the attendance at the various playgrounds of the city, were announced at a recent meeting of the board. A table compiled by Secretary Earl W. Burger shows the relative increase at the playgrounds.

At the Orient Hill Playground the attendance has been first week 141; second week, 194; third week, 133; fourth week, 269.

At the Willow Tree playground there has been a much larger attendance. First week 141; second week 294; third week, 359, and fourth week 373.

The Central High playground has only been open for two weeks but the results have been gratifying to the association. The first week at Central 235 people were present and the second week a total of 343 showing an increase of 104 in one week. Such facts point out the success of the playground movement in Xenia.

The board also has in mind the furthering of this project on a larger scale and the future holds great things in store for the children of Xenia.

ARMY DISH PROVES PALATABLE TO MEN DURING REUNION

Ex-soldiers, who a few short years ago spent the greater part of their spare time "cussing" army grub, are avidly of real "army slum gullion," when it was served to them at the reunion of Company K at the fairgrounds, Wednesday.

Mess Sergeant James Curlett, who had charge of the mess, believed that five years during which the ex-soldiers had not tasted a bit of "slum" would whet their appetites for this favorite dish of the camp dining room or field kitchen.

So it was real "slum gullion" or "stew el rancho" that was served to the Company K reunionists at noon Wednesday. Seventy-five reunionists ate enough "slum" for 125 men according to the cook's computation, everybody returning for "seconds." One dipperful was all of the "slum" left.

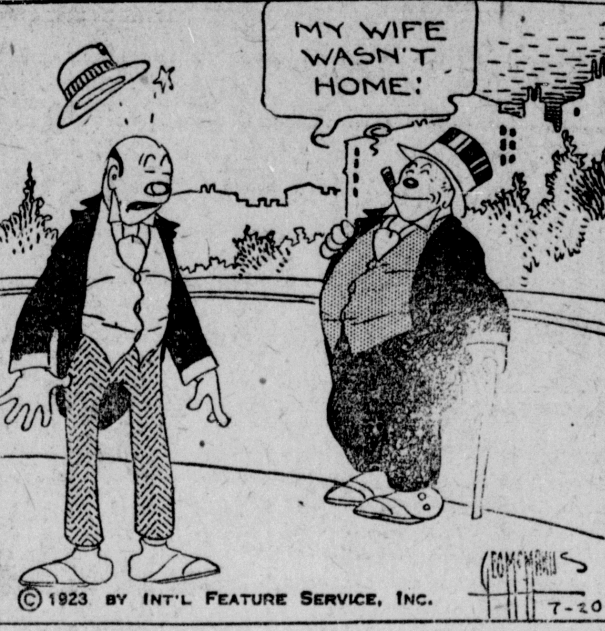

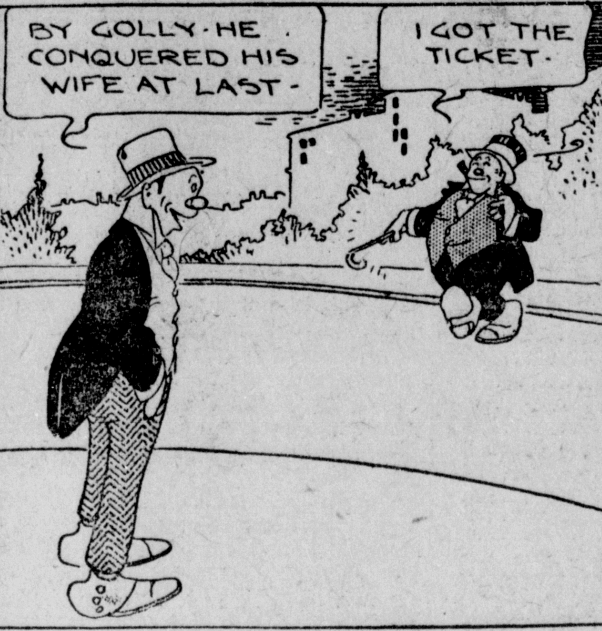

Here are the ingredients of the Army's favorite dish: beef, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, paprika salt and pepper. According to Mess Sergeant Curlett it is not only good but nourishing. Although he didn't say so it is also easy to prepare, which probably accounts in part for its frequent appearance on the Army menu.

"Sea Turkey," "corn willy" and other features of camp diet were not on the menu, however.

FILES DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS.

Cincinnati, O., July 17.—Mrs. Beatrice McClelland has filed divorce proceedings against her husband, Noah C. McClelland, Latonia race track steward. Mrs. McClelland charges him with frequently threatening her life and with keeping a loaded revolver close at hand. The couple were married in Chicago in the 1904 and have a daughter 17 years old.

Styles BY LENORE

Here are two inexpensive frocks that know how to be smart in spite of that fact. The first, made of light brown linen with double or-gandie collar, cuffs and vest, accomplishes the effect by a wholly novel idea in the way of a belt—which is made simply of a lot of flat red bone buttons strung on to a patent leather base. This type of dress may be worn very becomingly by a matron.

In the other model, a new and clever neckline does the trick. Here pink linen is employed, and the interesting lines of the bodice and pockets, are accentuated by two widths of old blue braid. This frock has also been made in tan and loaded revolver close at hand. The couple were married in Chicago in the 1904 and have a daughter 17 years old.

THE MISFIT

By Jane Plehps

NO DESIRE TO LIVE Chapter LI

On her narrow bed in the hospital, Natalie tossed, constantly muttering of Horace, at times reminiscing back to the days when he courted her, at others crying out in resentment at his mother, talking of a "misfit" of cab-bages that could not be grafted into roses; of her work with Mr. Marshall, and going over her last day with Horace, then babbling like the baby or calling her pet names, crooning over her, or going over her talk with Horace reiterating her determination not to live with his mother, and so forth; talking also of Craig and Beverly.

"She must have had a cruel mother-in-law," the nurse said to the doctor. "I have found there is usually fault on both sides when people can't agree."

"She is very lovely, in spite of her being so ill," the nurse said, "and in such an unusual way. She is not at all a common type."

Etta had sent Natalie's mother word of her illness but she had broken her leg in an accident the day before she received the letter, so could not come to her. There was no one else, so Etta, in spite of her work, the care of her baby, visited the hospital daily.

It was several days before Natalie recognized her, and then it was but a wraith of the old Natalie who smiled wanly at her as she bent over the bed.

"She will live if no further complications set in," the nurse told Etta. "But it will be a long slow convalescence."

She has burned out her strength with the long fever.

But Natalie seemed to have no wish to get well. She lay supine, never speaking unless spoken to, then only a few words, or a nod of her head. Finally the doctor told Etta.

"Unless she is roused in some way she will slip away from us yet. The will to live is lacking. Isn't there something you can do to rouse her?"

"I'll try," Etta said hopelessly. Etta spoke of Horace, but save for a slow inquiring glance, as if she wondered why Etta bothered her, Natalie showed no reaction. She mentioned Mrs. Crandell, but no resentment lit Natalie's face, as invariably had been the case before her illness. It was as though both Horace and Mrs. Crandell were utter strangers to her—that they meant absolutely nothing in her life.

When Etta talked of the baby, Natalie brightened for a moment.

"Would you like to see her?" she asked.

Natalie nodded and smiled. Etta told the doctor and he arranged she should bring the baby. Natalie's namesake. But after a moment's faintly smiling recognition, a weak attempt to pat the little creature, Natalie relapsed into her former listlessness, and the doctor motioned Etta to take the child away.

"She'll die, Clyde. The doctor says so, unless something is done to make her want to live," Etta told her husband.

Almost every day Etta wrote Natalie's mother. Now she wrote that her condition was serious, fearing they would blame her for not telling them if anything happened to Natalie.

"Oh, I feel so helpless," Etta moaned. And really Etta and Clyde were helpless. Not understanding the ways of the class to which Horace belonged, they did not know how to go about finding him to communicate with him. He was in Europe, hence unavailable.

Natalie never had told Etta of Craig Harper and the others she had met through Horace. Once she had mentioned Beverly Rainsford, but in a way that intimated dislike, and Etta had paid no attention to the name, although now she desperately tried to recall it.

"If I ever knew where the Crandell's mads were I'd send for one of them," Etta said in desperation, after reading a letter from Natalie's mother scolding Horace for being away. That was all she knew, that he was in Europe. Natalie had told her nothing of their trouble. Like many people of her class she was no letter writer, and Natalie had not thought it necessary to inform her. So she naturally felt indignant that Natalie should be alone when ill.

INTREPID FLYER WILL TRY AGAIN TO SPAN NATION

Maughan Forced Down in Wyoming Because of Oil Leak.

NOT DISCOURAGED

Confident He Can Make
Coast-to-Coast Trip In Daylight.

Washington, July 20.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan will not be permitted to make another attempt at a dawn-to-dusk flight across the continent until next summer, it was announced officially at the war department this afternoon.

Rock Springs, Wyo., July 20.—Failure! The word was emblazoned on the western sky last night, where Lieutenant Russell Maughan had hoped to write success.

A broken oil gauge, a delicate instrument, forced the intrepid army aviator to land here as he was nearing the last leg of his 16-hour flight from New York to San Francisco.

"It was one of those things over which we have no control," said the weary aviator, when he explained the nature of the accident. "It was a broken oil gauge. I noticed it first near North Platte, Neb., but it was not very bad. I thought we had it fixed at Cheyenne, but 20 miles out of Rock Springs it began to leak in bucketfuls, so I thought best to quit."

It was Lieutenant Maughan's second attempt to cross the continent between sunrise and sunset. Two weeks ago after reaching St. Joseph, Mo., he was forced to abandon the flight through a break in his plane in taking off.

The flight that started at Mineola flying field at 4:08 yesterday morning was scheduled to be made in five stages. The first, from Mineola to Dayton, 580 miles, was negotiated in 2 hours and 27 minutes; the second, from Dayton to St. Joseph, Mo., 460 miles, was covered in 3 hours and 46 minutes; and the third, from St. Joseph to Cheyenne, 530 miles, in 3 hours and 26 minutes. So far Maughan was only a few minutes behind his schedule.

At Cheyenne the daring lieutenant expressed his first doubt of success. "I fear it is all over, there's something wrong with the oil," he said. Mechanics rushed forward to examine the plane. They found a leaking oil gauge.

There was a heartbreaking delay of 30 minutes while the mechanics worked. Maughan was tired, almost stifled from the escaping oil fumes. He rested on a bit of canvas. The mechanics did the best they could. Maughan was impatient to be off. He wanted to deliver a bundle of New York newspapers to the people of San Francisco.

At 3:13 the temporary repairs were completed and Maughan, smiling, waved goodbye to the crowd and flashed out of Cheyenne. "Maughan just passed here, going strong," came a message in a few minutes from Laramie, 50 miles west. Hope ran high. He would make it yet. He was on the fourth lap, from Cheyenne to Salduro, Utah, little desert station, a lap of 470 miles. That covered and but one remained, from Salduro to Crissfield, San Francisco, 500 miles.

The plane passed over Rock Springs, 250 miles from Cheyenne. The crowd cheered. Ten minutes later the plane, flying low, sluttered down in the Rock Springs landing field.

A tired, disappointed aviator dragged himself from the pilot's seat. "I can't make it," he said. "She is leaking too badly. I must give up."

There were no cheers. The crowd realized the battle against time to span the continent had been lost. They spoke encouragingly to him. "You certainly performed a wonderful feat in making it this far. The eyes of the whole country were on you."

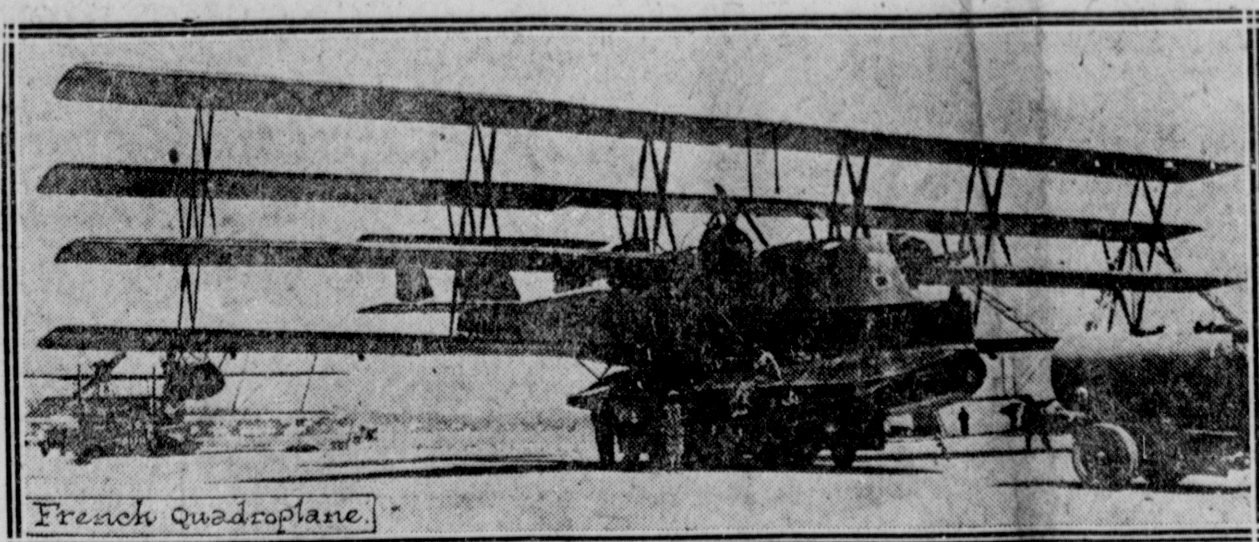

And Lieutenant Maughan, frank and honest as he is daring, admitted that it was. "Yes, wasn't it wonderful? I think it was a wonderful thing, even if I didn't complete the flight. But those things happen and it was one of those things over which we have no control."

And whether he will try again is up to Washington. Lieutenant Maughan is a soldier. "I am anxious to renew the attempt and am sure I can make it if they give me another chance," he said. "It is up to Washington."

Who Pays The Taxes? Evidence That Much Comes From Small Means, Seen

BY SIDNEY THATCHER

We stood in line at the Court House today to pay our taxes.

Many others also stood in line or lounged in the lobby of the Treasurer's office where the tax-paying is done. For Friday is the last day of the June tax collection.

And as we stood in line we studied those waiting to pay their taxes at the window. Some looked as if it were no easy thing to pay taxes and we saw many who looked as though they were paying with an effort.

One old fellow was a farmer and he was down at the heels and his trousers cuffs were frayed at the bottom. He had seen better days, a woman, whose hair bore evidence of having seen many summers and there was one whose carefully brushed widow's weeds displayed long wear. All had the appearance of parting with money they could ill afford to pay.

And we decided that it would have been well for the public officials, who spend the taxpayers' money to have been there. Seeing those taxpayers—the man with the frayed trousers, the woman with last summer's hat and the widow with the worn out weeds and all the others of us, they would have said:

"Here are people handing their money over to us to spend and none of them look rich. This man needs a new suit, that one a new pair of shoes. This woman wears her old hat and the little woman in black must delay purchasing a new dress." And then the officials might have asked themselves, "Are we giving them their money's worth? Do we spend any of their money needlessly? Do we hold expenses down so that these poor people's taxes may be made as light as possible."

Some paid their taxes with paper and silver money—cash carefully saved in slowly multiplying savings accounts in pots, socks and under mattresses. Few in the crowd paid in checks. They were people who came twice to the Treasurer's window—the first time to learn the amount that they might avoid drawing out too much of their hard earned savings.

They doled their money out bill by bill and coin by coin, as if the giving were hard. Then they went away to commence saving for their December taxes.

"We can save only for taxes," said one, as she turned from the window. It would have made a taxpayer very solemn to look upon such tax payers.

And so it came our turn and we passed our money through the wicket and wished it farewell and a useful life.

"Go on, good money," we said. "Go into the salary of the County and City officials and tell them you came from a poor taxpayer, who is anxious that he might pay his taxes, that he remembers this when he considers spending any public money."

"Go on, good money," into the salary of the County Commissioners and tell them 'Your salary comes from a poor taxpayer, so why shouldn't you cut down expenses and hold down the tax rate?'"

"Go into the salary of the City officials and tell them you came out of the pocket of a taxpayer who wants to be sure the payment will bring better health conditions in Xenia. Go into the salaries of all county office holders and bring them a message from the taxpayers, asking for purity in operation and economy in expenditures in all their offices. So long, good money, so long."

We paid, and the woman with last summer's hat, and the man with the frayed trousers and she who wore widow's weeds, had also paid, and gone on.

But their places at the windows were already taken by other taxpayers. They were of like type. There was an old man who took his tax money carefully from an old black purse with brass clasps, and there was a woman prematurely old with children at her heels and another who bore marks of privation and suffering.

These were the taxpayers.

And we knew then that seeing these people the officials in the Treasurer's office must feel this same, but they must collect what others spend. They have no choice. But other public officials see only the taxpayer's money. Money, and more money. They spend it and yet they know not from whence it comes. If there be in all Greene County any official who does not know that his very salary comes largely from those who can barely meet the excessive tax assessments which are now in vogue, he is invited to go to the lobby of the Treasurer's office and see the taxpayers themselves as they pay.

FRENCH MUST LEAVE FIRST IS ANSWER OF GERMAN LEADERS

London, July 20.—The German embassy was instructed today to inform the British that the Berlin government cannot order cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr unless French evacuation is guaranteed by the Allies.

Germany suggested that, if the reparations offer of the Berlin government was accepted, "mortgages" guaranteeing indemnity payments would be delivered within six weeks. However, Berlin would expect evacuation by French and Belgian troops to commence as soon as the mortgages were delivered.

There was another meeting of the cabinet at noon when the British reparations note again was considered.

Premier Stanley Baldwin was hopeful that the draft of the British note could be finished up today.

London, July 20.—It was understood in semi-official quarters that the British reparations note was dispatched this afternoon. According to word from Paris, it will be considered by the French cabinet tomorrow.

The government has exercised great secrecy regarding both the contents of the note and its delivery. It is known, however, that it requests an international conference to consider the reparations and Ruhr questions.

DAUGHERTY CALLED IN MORSE TRIAL

Washington, July 20.—The Morse conspiracy trial took on an added national significance today when it was announced that Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty would be summoned next week by the defense to tell what he knew of the wartime transactions of Charles W. Morse, and the relations of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation and the United States shipping board.

Defense attorneys have not revealed just what they plan to bring out by the attorney generals testimony, but they have had a subpoena issued for him and mailed to the United States marshal at Columbus, O. for service.

FOUR ARE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Logansport, Ind., July 20.—Four of the crew of five on a Pennsylvania switching train crew, were killed early today near Crawfordville, Indiana, when the locomotive and three cars loaded with coal, struck a derail and pitched over a 20 foot embankment. Three bodies were taken from beneath 150 tons of coal.

WOMEN TO HONOR ANOTHER'S MEMORY

Seneca Falls, N. Y., July 20.—The pilgrimage to the grave of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer of pioneers among the suffragists, who perhaps did more for the women of the world than any other individual, will form the climax of the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the first equal rights meeting ever held in this country. The celebration, put on by the National Woman's party, is in progress here today. The pilgrimage will take place on Sunday afternoon, when 400 delegates from all parts of the United States will motor to Mt. Hope cemetery in Rochester, where the remains of the noted leader lies buried.

J. H. STRALEY IS DEAD AT HOME

Joseph H. Straley, of Jeffersonville, well known in Fayette and Greene Counties, died at his home, Thursday, according to word received by relatives here.

Mr. Straley was former president of the Citizens Bank at Jeffersonville. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. B. E. Williams, of Cedarville, and a son, Herman Straley, of near Cedarville. Mr. Straley was an uncle of Mrs. C. O. Rankin, of East Main Street, and a great-uncle of Sheriff Morris Sharp.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon from the M. E. Church, at Jeffersonville, with interment at that place.

HARDING SOLUTION OF TROUBLE ASKED

Westerville, O., July 20.—President Harding may be called upon to decide the Westerville postoffice tangle which resulted from charges preferred against several employees by Postmistress Mary E. Lee and their subsequent dismissal or transfer. The Business Men's Association threatens to go direct to the president while the employees are preparing an appeal to the civil service commission.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR OHIO FIRM

WANT PUBLICITY ON TAX RETURNS TO AID REVENUE

LaFollette to Introduce Bill
To This Effect in Next
Congress

Washington, July 20.—A determined fight will be made in the next Congress by a coalition of Democrats and Republican "progressives" for an amendment to the revenue act, requiring publicity on all income tax returns. It was learned here today.

Senator LaFollette, Republican, of Wisconsin, has served notice that at the opening of Congress in December he will introduce a bill to accomplish this. Such legislation is regarded as a direct attack on large taxpayers, who are now shielded in every possible way by the government, through a rule holding that tax matters are "confidential."

Internal revenue bureau officials today frankly said that if the provision forbidding them to discuss income tax matters were removed by Congress, it probably would open up new and almost unbelievable larger sources of revenue which is now being withheld from the government.

MOB VIOLENCE IN ADAMS COUNTY IS FEARED—USE GUARD

West Union, O., July 20.—Fearing mob violence, officers have placed extra guards around the Adams County Jail to protect two men charged with murder and one already convicted of a similar crime. The prisoners are John Spires and Frank Moore, charged with the slaying of Robert E. Morris, of Cincinnati, near here recently. Morris was killed while riding in his automobile with two men and robbed of $1,600.

The other prisoner is Robert F. Davis, convicted of murdering George Webb, near Seaman, Ohio.

Spikes and Moore deny any connection with the murder of Morris. "Placing of the extra guards about the jail resulted when reports came that a mob would come from Seaman in an effort to get Davis and also Moore and Spires."

Davis was convicted in Common Pleas Court here and sentenced to be electrocuted.

CITY BUS SERVICE IS DISCONTINUED

Columbus, Ohio, July 20.—City bus service in Columbus will be discontinued by the Ohio Motor Bus Company, according to C. L. Bowler, of Newark, president of the company today.

Mr. Bowler is former general manager of the American Motor Truck Company of Newark, a subsidiary of the R. L. Dollings Company, for which a receivership has been asked in common pleas court here. He denied that the Ohio Motor Bus Company and the Dollings Company are connected.

COTTON BROKER GETS SUSPENSION

New York, July 20.—Official announcement was made today of the suspension from the cotton exchange of Frank H. Barrett, one of the largest cotton brokers in the United States. He was unable to meet his obligations. Barrett's headquarters were in Augusta, Ga. He is a partner of Ty Cobb in ownership of the Augusta Baseball Club and has large financial investments in the south.

Sequel to Bankruptcy of Elbinger Shoe Manufacturing Company Written as Women Ordered to Explain Extensive Realty Deals

Cincinnati, O., July 20.—The wives of two of the firm members of the bankrupt Elbinger Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Lebanon, O., will be examined by Attorney Stricker for the creditors, as regards certain extensive realty deals participated in by firm members, previous to the going into bankruptcy on account of the alleged part played by these women, whose names city and country property appeared at the time of the firm's embarrassment. The original capitalization of the company was $50,000 but this was increased to $300,000 then to half a Lieutenant Rutledge Irvine, U. S. Navy, holds the world's record for "airplane weight-carrying altitude flight" and has received a loving cup from the Dayton, (O.) Chamber of Commerce as a testimonial of his achievement. Lieutenant Irvine climbed 11,300 feet, with a load of one ton, in a standard navy torpedo airplane.

LETTER CARRIERS URGE NEW HANDLING OF APPROPRIATIONS

Bucyrus, O., July 20.—Resolutions calling for the removal of postoffice appropriations from Congress and demanding they be placed in the hands of the Postmaster General were adopted by the Rural Letter Carriers' Association, of Ohio, which held its annual convention here today.

The postal representatives held that the Postoffice Department is self sustaining and the Postmaster General should have the right to expend the money.

Van Wert was selected as the replacement of the 1924 convention.

Old officers were re-elected as follows:

A. P. Plang, of Pleasantville, president; Isaac Cull, of Columbiana, vice president; Albert Stultz, of Gibsonburg, secretary; Isaac Hill, Orient, treasurer; W. D. Brown, of Washington, D. C., attorney, and G. D. Irwin, of Wilmington, H. E. Royer, of Lewisville and I. E. Simmons, of Cambridge, executive committee.

TWO INJURED WHEN ENGINE IS DITCHED

Toledo, O., July 20.—Engineer Leo Ulger and Fireman Jacob Cleveland are in a hospital here today, suffering serious injuries as a result of a Michigan Central freight wreck early today. The men escaped instant death by leaping from the cab as the engine went into a ditch and rolled down an embankment. That the entire train was not derailed was deemed little short of a miracle, railroad officials said.

The engine and tender for a long time obstructed the main track. Opening of the switch was blamed on a group of boys seen playing around the tracks.

FAVOR UNIFORM TRAFFIC LAWS.

Youngstown, O., July 20.—Ohio Police Chiefs' association went on record in favor of uniform national traffic laws. The resolution was unanimously passed following an address by Fred Caley, manager of the Cleveland Automobile club. A uniform federal law protecting motorists from being arrested in other states for offenses which would be legal in their own state and city also was urged by Caley.

DOLLINGS DOES NOT FIGHT SUIT FOR RECEIVER

Attorneys For Company
Appear Before Court
In Columbus

'NEED PROTECTION'

Receivership Needed Declares Attorney for Stockholders During Hearing

Columbus, O., July 20.—Three receivers for the R. L. Dollings Company, fiscal brokers, and the International Note and Mortgage Company, both Ohio corporations, were named by Judge Duncan, in Common Pleas Court today. They are: William C. Willard, vice president of the Huntington National Bank of Columbus, representing the court, Paul De Long, of Columbus, for the stockholders and Samuel A. Kinnear, of Columbus, for the company.

Attorney Fred N. Sinks, of Columbus, was appointed receiver for the C. and F. Shoe Company, of Columbus, and placed under $50,000 bond. This company was financed by the Dollings corporation, according to the charge. The court was expected to instruct the receivers to immediately collect and administer all funds of the two companies and to make a report to the court on the assets.

The receivers were placed under $50,000 bond each, separate bonds being required for their connection with both the Dollings and the Mortgage Companies.

This action was taken by Dollings representatives "without" admitting the allegations in petitions of stockholders.

It was specifically pointed out by attorneys that the action today involves an application for appointment of receivers for the Dollings Company of Ohio and the International Note and Mortgage Company of Ohio only. Application for receivership of subsidiaries will be acted on separately, while similar actions against subsidiaries and branches in Pennsylvania and Indiana will be taken up in those states, if at all.

Other companies and subsidiaries are involved only as the R. L. Dollings Company is a holding organization of Wilmington, H. E. Royer, of Lewisville and I. E. Simmons, of Cambridge, executive committee.

"The mere application for receivership for the Dollings Company to all intents and purposes puts it out of business," attorneys said.

Judge Duncan issued an order adding to the 13 original plaintiffs, 15 additional stockholders, who hold stock of about $200,000 face value. Eleven of the new plaintiffs are women.

Columbus, O., July 20.—Attorneys for the R. L. Dollings Company, fiscal brokers of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and its subsidiaries did not contest the appointment of a receiver when they appeared before Common Pleas Judge Robert P. Duncan today on charges contained in a demand for receivership filed by stockholders.

Thousands of stockholders of the Dollings Company and its subsidiaries, "need the protection of the courts," representatives of the corporation admitted before Judge Duncan.

When Lowry F. Sater, of Columbus, counsel for stockholders, holding $4,500 in Dollings stock, told the court, "nobody who has ever been connected with the company should be permitted to be the receiver," a crowd of several hundred stockholders cheered.

Judge Duncan issued a sharp reprimand and threatened to clear the courtroom if any further demonstrations occurred.

Sater continued, contending that if the statements made in the petition of stockholders were not true the Dollings Company would be fighting the case.

"Their admissions disclose the need of a receivership," he said, "and verify all allegations against the company."

Attorneys for the plaintiffs suggested that Paul De Long, of Columbus, manager of the Pirung estate be appointed as one of the receivers. The Dollings representatives want Samuel A. Kinnear, of Columbus, a former city service director and postmaster named.

Attorney C. C. Morton, for stockholders, introduced a motion asking that 15 more stockholders holding about $200,000 stock of the Dollings Company be added to the list of plaintiffs. Action has not been taken by the court.

Besides the Dollings Companies proper, the International Note and Mortgage Company, Ohio corporation and subsidiaries including the Franklin Brick and Tile Company, of Columbus, American Motor Truck Company, of Newark, Champion Engineering Company, Kenton, Mathews Engineering Company, Sandusky; Recording Devices Company, Dayton; Burton Townsend Company, of Zanesville; North Carolina Farms Company of Columbus and the Florida Farms and Industries Company of Columbus, are involved.

JAMES GOVERNOR IS CHAUTAUQUA SPEAKER FRIDAY

A 'real man' will have a message at Xenia Redpath Chautauqua Friday night, when W. L. Harding, former governor of Iowa, will give a discussion, entitled, "The Clock Strikes Twelve."

Mr. Harding is known as one of the strongest speakers on the Chautauqua platform, his lecture including current problems of vital interest. During his two terms as Governor of Iowa, Mr. Harding specialized in public education, and from that experience, has a subject of national importance.

Appearing with Mr. Harding, in the evening, will be Joseph Baldi, accordionist. In his accordion programs, Mr. Baldi introduces both classical and popular numbers. He uses an elaborate instrument with rare skill. Mr. Baldi appeared on the afternoon program with Clemens' Marionettes offering "Jack and the Beanstalk."

Taking the place of the usual musical comedy on the Chautauqua program, Victor's Band, of New York City, gave a popular concert Thursday afternoon, and a grand concert in the evening, directed by Signor Lacrenza.

The National Male Quartet will give a concert Saturday afternoon. "The Tragedy of Ignorance" is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Frank L. Loveland. A children's hour will be held. A premier concert by the quartet, under the direction of Charles Cox, will be given in the evening.

GUARD CHICAGO WOMAN UNDER DEATH SENTENCE

DIES ON VISIT IN XENIA ON THURSDAY

Mrs. Ida M. Jones, of Avalon, Pennsylvania, died Thursday evening at six o'clock, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ella Nisonger, on East Main Street with whom she had been visiting. Mrs. Jones came to this city for a visit about three weeks ago, taking ill with pneumonia, which caused her death, a week ago.

She leaves one son, J. A. Jones, of Bellevue, Penn.; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Nisonger, of this city, and Mrs. William H. Plummer, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. Ella Nisonger at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with interment in this city. Friends may call at the Nisonger home after seven o'clock Friday evening.

Crudelle and Mrs. S. N. Crudelle.

Mrs. Sabella Nitti Crudelle, the first woman ever sentenced to die on the gallows in Chicago, is shown here with her second husband, Peter Crudelle, under a similar sentence. Mrs. Crudelle already has tried to kill herself and is under constant guard. The two were convicted of murdering Mrs. Crudelle's first husband, Frank Nitti, a farmer, near Stickney, Ill., on July 22, 1922. The conviction promises to cause trouble in some Chicago families, the wife of one of the jurors already having declared she will leave him if the woman is hanged. The jury which found Mrs. Crudelle guilty was composed, back row, left to right, of T. C. Murtough, Charles A. Ludwig, W. Frank Gamble, Martin Jacobs, Fred Burnette and C. K. Barnhisel. Front row, left to right: Harry Haser, William J. Fenwell, Henry Ludwig, R. J. Gould, P. Howard and Henry Hetzke.

According to Miss Gorham Kahler was instantly jealous of her and the shooting is attributed to this cause. Kahler was a brother-in-law of one of his victims.

Their guests numbered twelve and those from out of town were, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schramm, Mr. Fred Bath and Mr. Johnson, of Wilmington, and Miss Jervis, Hartford City.

SURPLUS OF WHEAT IN RUSSIA SEEN AS MORE TROUBLE

Washington, July 19.—Magnus Johnson's victory in Minnesota has the two old parties laboring under political shell shock, observers here say.

Groping about amid the confusion of the resulting situation, Republican and Democratic leaders are more upset and worried than at any time since the Bull Moose uprising in 1912. The Democrats appear to veteran observers to be in far worse condition than in that memorable fight. Then the Roosevelt revolt was against the conservative old guard in the Republican party. Wilson swept into the white house, a minority president, as the result. The present revolt, which showed its strength last November and now demonstrates its constantly increasing power, is against conservatism and reactionism in both of the old organizations.

The farmer-labor uprising in Minnesota apparently is the outgrowth of the distress which has had the farmers in its grip for the last several years. Now Senator Brookhart returns from abroad and announces Russia will have a crop surplus to export. He had a 10 weeks' study of agricultural conditions in Europe.

A large Russian surplus coming into competition with the surpluses of other countries, which must have world markets to insure their prosperity, can only add to the demoralization among American farmers, who are forced to see the price of their wheat, for example, fixed on the basis of the small part of their crop shipped to Liverpool.

Republican leaders at the capital received word that wheat in Kansas is bringing the lowest price since 1909, 14 years ago. No. 1 wheat, the best grade of the winter crop, is selling for 79 and 80 cents a bushel. This is far less than it costs to produce it. Any such condition as this existing during the approaching campaign, it is frankly admitted, would sweep the party in power out of office.

William G. McAdoo, Democratic presidential possibility, had lunch with Woodrow Wilson, his father-in-law here.

The former president, according to McAdoo, was in excellent spirits and showed considerable improvement in health since McAdoo's last visit to the Wilson home two months ago.

Tired of Home Cares, Woman Turns Burglar.

Mrs. Catherine Buddenstick, alias O'Shaughnessy, of Brooklyn, N. Y., according to the police, left her husband and three young children and joined a burglar band because she had "too much of home cares and wanted to see life." Now she is under arrest on a burglary charge. She told the police that she married too young and that a combination of poverty and youth was too much for her to bear.

BOARD CONFIRMS COUNTY DIRECTOR OF NORMAL SCHOOL

Appointment of Miss Susanne M. Koehler, as county normal director for the training school established in connection with Cedarville College and Cedarville High School was confirmed by the County Board of Education at its meeting, Thursday.

Miss Koehler holds two degrees and has done graduate work along her chosen line. The State Department of Education recommends her highly as an educator where she has conducted a normal school for the last three years, according to County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Aultman.

Confirmation of Miss Koehler's appointment completes arrangements for this state supported county normal school which brings teacher training opportunities to those who propose to take up teaching as a profession. The school will also mean a saving to these embryo teachers of $500 on the first year's preparation, according to Superintendent Aultman.

Plans are now being worked out whereby this one year of normal work may be offered for credit on the regular four-year college course. This plan, it is said, will be especially beneficial to those who find it necessary to teach while obtaining their college education.

Both were veterans. The flying field refused further details pending the finding of an officer inquiry board.

TERRIBLY INJURED OFFICIAL IS ALIVE

Although surgeons at Espey Hospital have given up all hope for the recovery of Charles Coffman, village marshal of Yellow Springs, he was still living Friday afternoon.

Coffman is showing remarkable vitality in hanging onto the slender thread of life, surgeons say. His condition, however, is gradually growing weaker, according to Dr. Paul Espey, and death is expected.

Coffman received what are expected to be fatal injuries when he was adjusting a belt on a threshing machine on the Ralph Funderburgh

THE DEATH OF A GREAT EDITOR.

It is only natural that like craftsmen take more interest in each other than they do in the rest of mankind. Hence this writer has always felt drawn towards fellow editors, even if he knew but little about them. And if the editor be one who has only "to furnish his 'copy' once per month, instead of daily as we have to, we still sympathized with him in the feeling that his longing would be to give 'what his readers want.'"

There are many monthly magazines in this country vieing with each other for public patronage. One of these is only a few years old, the "American Magazine," whose publication office is at our neighboring city of Springfield, Ohio, which has secured an enormous circulation in its short life. "There is a reason," as the Battle Creek man says. It monthly gives to its patrons "what the people want." It makes a specialty of telling stories of human interest, and to a great extent the rise of poor young men to positions of influence by their own exertion. The deep down "catch" of this lies in the feeling that "if another can forge ahead unaided so may I." A stimulant to ambition.

We were pained to read this week of the death of Mr. John M. Siddall, editor of the American Magazine at his home in the East, and that the burial would be at his boyhood home, Oberlin, Ohio, on Wednesday of this week. We feel that the world has lost something of importance, has let slip from it one who had been able to give it what it wanted—a man who had the instinct to help others by telling them stories that would encourage them on the rugged pathway of life.

Immediately we went to our "Who's Who" to find its brief history of the dead editor. It is commonplace enough, as is the life of most of us. But we felt deep down in our heart—all right, he had done what he could to smooth life's pathway for his fellow men, and what more can any one do? The record is that he did it to the very last. Brave spirit, we shall miss you, and we shall only hope for more like you to bless the world.

AN OLD ALASKAN ROW.

The President is not being permitted to rest, loaf and "invite his soul" in Alaska. He has found a Territory losing in population, considerably embittered and its parts at war with each other.

Would-be promoters gnash their teeth when they contemplate the Alaskan riches in timber and minerals fenced in back of the barbed wire of governmental regulation and conservation policies. The salmon-fishing Indians do not like the restrictions laid upon them by Secretary Hoover's well-meant regulations and fishing contracts. Almost everybody in Alaska seems unhappy. It is an unhappy land.

The President is finding it so. He goes away for a rest and a look-see and within a week a bitter Alaskan feud is marring his visit. He has run into an ugly, pestiferous and politically dangerous row that has been smoldering for years. It is an old quarrel that began when the Guggenheim interests went into Alaska and that flared up in the memorable Ballinger-Pinchot feud. It is now centering about the towns of Seward and Anchorage and runs along the new rail line all the way from Seward to Fairbanks.

The new railroad is unsuccessful. It was planned and seventy-three miles of it built by John Ballaine. He failed and the line went to the Guggenheims. They sold it to the Government for $1,000,000, and it took $4,500,000 to make it usable. On top of that we have poured in $50,000,000 and run the road on through the Matanuska coal beds up to Fairbanks. Ballaine had started the town of Seward on Resurrection Bay with its 100 fathoms of water.

Now the charge is made by Ballaine that the "Seattle crowd," backed by the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, is bent on destroying Seward as a port, moving the capital from Juneau to nine-year-old Anchorage and making that town the port, the capital and the real metropolis. The Guggenheims are charged with hampering the work of the Government and duping the United States in divers ways. Rate discriminations are charged, and altogether there appear to be the makings of a first-class row.

In 1921 all this was about to be aired, but the hearings on proposed consolidation of Alaskan bureaus was rather hurriedly adjourned. The quarrel was carefully smothered at that time, only to break out again as soon as the presidential party set foot in the Territory.

Secretaries Hoover, Work and Wallace will, of course, do their best to patch it up. It is, however, so badly mixed, crossed and tangled with financial rows, political feuds, personal hatreds, regional quarrels and official jealousies that it may be unpatchable.

Hearings are now under way, but they may do no more than let enough air into the smoldering fire to make it blaze higher. If these fail to bring peace, agreement and understanding, all the pressure, political and otherwise, that can be brought to bear cannot keep the lid from flying off the Alaskan row in the sixty-eighth Congress—Public Ledger.

WILL THERE BE ANOTHER MOVEMENT TO GET THE BOYS OUT OF THE TRENCHES BEFORE CHRISTMAS?

1903--Twenty Years Ago--1923

The Republican Executive Committee organized yesterday, by the selection of Mr. George Little as chairman, Mr. Emery T. Seal as vice chairman, John A. Nisbet as secretary, and Asa Little as treasurer.

There have been more plain drunks in town lately than for a long time back—Bellbrook item.

A protective Association is being organized in the village of Spring Valley to guard against petty thieving and irregularities generally.

Fire broke out this morning at ten o'clock at the residence of Dr. S. S. Wilson, causing some excitement, not much damage was sustained.

We are informed that the wheat in the western part of the country will not amount to more than half a crop, few fields yielding a good crop.

sterilized jars after you have cut each peach in half and removed pit. Pour over them, in a jar, a hot medium thick sirup made by boiling three quarts of granulated sugar and two quarts of water together for ten minutes. Partially seal, process in boiling water for 15 minutes, completely seal, and store.

Peach Marmalade: Remove skins from peaches as above described. Then halve, stone and weigh the fruit. For every pound, set aside a pound of sugar, to be added later. Put the weighed fruit-pulp (with a few kernels, for flavor) into an agate bottle which has been moistened inside to prevent burning and heat the fruit slowly, mashing with a wooden spoon. Stir to avoid burning, and when soft and thick it is time to add the sugar. Mix well and boil slowly, until the juice is jelly-like when you test it by putting a few drops on a plate. Then turn the marmalade into hot, sterilized jelly glasses and cover, when cold, with melted paraffine.

The following Peach and Pear canning recipes have been requested by readers:

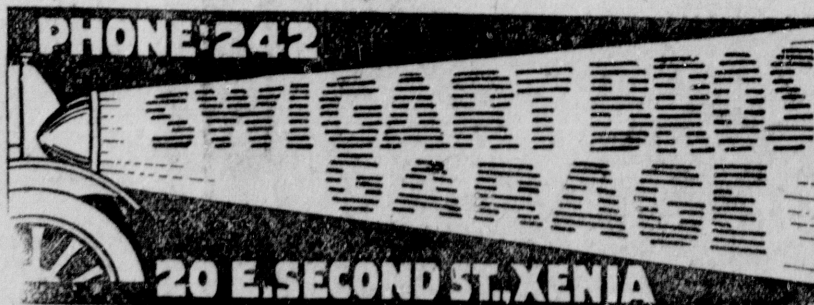

Pear-Pineapple Butter: Pare, core and quarter four quarts of pears. Pare two large pineapples and remove eyes. Put both the pears and the pineapples through your food-chopper and place the mixture in a porcelain-lined kettle. Add eight cups (four pounds) of granulated sugar and boil till clear. Seal in glasses when cold, like jelly. Very delicious.

To Can Bartlett Pears: Pare, halve and core the fruit. Pack it closely in hot, sterilized glass jars, adding one tablespoon of lemon juice to each quart jar. Pour over the pears a medium-thick sirup made by boiling two quarts of water and three quarts of sugar together for ten minutes. Have this sirup come to within one-fourth inch of jar-top then adjust sterilized glass covers over new rubbers which have been dipped swiftly into hot water, and partially seal the jar; process it for 20 minutes in boiling water which rises almost to jar-top, then completely seal, invert to test for leaks, and store.

LET US GO OUT TO PLAY

Work is the great healer, the great builder, the one antidote for worry, disappointment, loss, betrayal, loneliness and unhappiness. But behind it is something exceedingly rich—play!

Let us go out to play. We will roam through the rolling fields, past playing children in front yards, thrill with the beauty of pictures in trees, flowers, rocks, valleys, rivers. Let us go out to play—and in our favorite books find adventures that will lift us on our toes and lead us around the world.

Let us find a heart somewhere and play in it. Perhaps it is filled with ache and want. Let us bring to it sunshine and cheer. By giving it companionship and understanding, light will stream in and then play will be the order of the day—and happiness the reward.

Let us go out to play. Our muscles are tired from long inactivity, our blood slew from too little air and sun.

Even as we work in our offices, may we not hesitate for a moment every once in a while—and in our thoughts—run out to play for a brief spell.

This human machine of yours is no different from those that are made by it. It must be kept loose and free and oiled by frequent play. Let us go out to play. And then come back to work, happy and refreshed.

ESTIMATE 75,000

WILL SEE LEONARD AND TENDLER FIGHT

New York, July 20.—More than $500,000 will be paid by boxing enthusiasts to see the Benny Leonard-Levy Tendler championship bout next Monday night and Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the contest today told why fight fans will pay this amount.

"There will be three distinct classes of people who will help to make up this amount," the promoter explained. "First there will be the Leonard following, and there is a veritable legion of Leonard admirers. There are rabid Leonard fans, fight mad when the name of Leonard is mentioned. This following will be up to the fight strong. "Then there is the crowd that always goes to a fight in the expectation of seeing a championship change hands. Reports have appeared from time to time that Leonard has retrogressed and is not the invincible fighter he once was. The element of chance plays a large part in sports. And thousands will view the contest on the chance that Tendler will put one over and win the title.

"Third there is that large crowd of lovers of boxing who will attend any fight which promises an exhibition of the manly art such as Leonard and Tendler no doubt will give. And there you are."

Fully 75,000 are expected to view the fight. This will be the largest gathering of fans ever assembled to see a fight in New York state. Boyle's Thirty Acres, across the river in Jersey City has played to larger houses but no fight in this state has played to a 75,000 crowd. Tickets, Johnson said, are going extremely fast with the interest in the bout even greater than he had anticipated.

The advance sale has already reached close to the $300,000 mark. He said the receipts would easily come to the half million mark.

Betting odds of 2 to 1 favor Leonard, with 1 to 2 that he will knock out Tendler.

A friend in Iowa wrote me how he was cured by taking May's Wonderful Remedy. I took a bottle on his advice with good results and have also taken the full course. My pains are all gone and I feel I am permanently cured." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. RESERVES TO MEET MIDDLETOWN TEAM ON LOT HERE SUNDAY

Fans who journey to the Cincinnati Avenue lot Sunday to see the Xenia Reserves and the Middletown Interstates hook up in a baseball game will see a struggle worth while as both teams are evenly matched. The Reserves so far have played eight games, winning four and losing three while they were tied once. The Reserves have a nifty ball nine and will give the Interstates a real argument.

Owens who holds down the first sack for Manager Jesse Chambliss' outfit takes care of the initial bag in first class manner. Owens is a southpaw and makes some mighty good stops at the first sack. He also bats well and can generally be depended upon to clout the ball in a pinch. Manager Chambliss has also added M. Leahey to his outfit, and he will more than likely play at short. McDonnell and Ackerman are also new additions to the team. The former is a pitcher while the latter is an outfielder.

Just who will pitch Sunday's game is not known but more than likely McDonnell will get the call. Wilson will catch while Owens will be found at first, E. Leahey at second, M. Leahey or Milburn at short, Ciphers or Botorff at third, while Shaw will be found in left field Haley or Ary in center and "Dewey" Ackerman in right.

The Reserves have been working hard for this game and all the play-

DOMESTIC TROUBLE RESULTS IN DEATH AND FATAL INJURY

Canton, O., July 20.—With one dead and one seriously injured, the end of two triangular domestic affairs reached their climax here today.

Mrs. Rosa Laschi, 36, is dead. Her husband is charged with killing her because, as he told police, "she loves another, and wants to keep me in jail all the time."

Shikery Audy, 42, returned home last night from a trip and claims he discovered his landlord and his wife in the same room at midnight. Audy told police that he objected to this "bit of play" while he was out making a living and so he proceeded to load Thomas Hood with lead from an automatic.

Namy Ahoud, who lives with his family across the street heard the racket in the Audy home and joined the fight. A small hatchet was brought into play.

Thomas Ahoud is in the hospital and is not expected to live. Namy Ahoud, a brother and his wife were also in the hospital with serious wounds.

Audy is in jail pending outcome of the case.

When Your Gas Bill Goes Up

Have a look and see if it isn't too much for what you are getting. Probably you can cut it materially without inconvenience to yourself.

Matches are cheaper than gas. When you are not using gas, why let it burn?

You cannot heat a liquid hotter than its boiling point. When the contents of your cooking utensil begin to boil, turn down the flame. Your money pays for the unnecessary heat.

Look For Leaks

Then have a look for gas leaks. Government engineers say about one foot of every six delivered to households is wasted in little leaks. They don't do anybody any good—and one dollar in every six is worth saving.

Maybe you are using appliances not originally intended for gas burning. That is expensive. They cannot deliver more than a third efficiency.

THE DEATH OF A GREAT EDITOR.

It is only natural that like craftsmen take more interest in each other than they do in the rest of mankind. Hence this writer has always felt drawn towards fellow editors, even if he knew but little about them. And if the editor be one who has only "to furnish his 'copy' once per month, instead of daily as we have to, we still sympathized with him in the feeling that his longing would be to give 'what his readers want.'"

There are many monthly magazines in this country vying with each other for public patronage. One of these is only a few years old, the "American Magazine," whose publication office is at our neighboring city of Springfield, Ohio, which has secured an enormous circulation in its short life. "There is a reason," as the Battle Creek man says. It monthly gives to its patrons "what the people want." It makes a specialty of telling stories of human interest, and to a great extent the rise of poor young men to positions of influence by their own exertion. The deep down "catch" of this lies in the feeling that "if another can forge ahead unaided so may I." A stimulant to ambition.

We were pained to read this week of the death of Mr. John M. Suddall, editor of the American Magazine at his home in the East, and that the burial would be at his boyhood home, Oberlin, Ohio, on Wednesday of this week. We feel that the world has lost something of importance, has let slip from it one who had been able to give it what it wanted—a man who had the instinct to help others by telling them stories that would encourage them on the rugged pathway of life.

Immediately we went to our "Who's Who" to find its brief history of the dead editor. It is commonplace enough, as is the life of most of us. But we felt deep down in our heart—all right, he had done what he could to smooth life's pathway for his fellow men, and what more can any one do? The record is that he did it to the very last. Brave spirit, we shall miss you, and we shall only hope for more like you to bless the world.

AN OLD ALASKAN ROW.

The President is not being permitted to rest, loaf and "invigorate his soul" in Alaska. He has found a Territory losing in population, considerably embittered and its parts at war with each other.

Would-be promoters gnash their teeth when they contemplate the Alaskan riches in timber and minerals fenced in back of the barbed wire of governmental regulation and conservation policies. The salmon-fishing Indians do not like the restrictions laid upon them by Secretary Hoover's well-meant regulations and fishing contracts. Almost everybody in Alaska seems unhappy. It is an unhappy land.

The President is finding it so. He goes away for a rest and a look-see and within a week a bitter Alaskan feud is marring his visit. He has run into an ugly, pestiferous and politically dangerous row that has been smoldering for years. It is an old quarrel that began when the Guggenheim interests went into Alaska and that flared up in the memorable Ballinger-Pinchot feud. It is now centering about the towns of Seward and Anchorage and runs along the new rail line all the way from Seward to Fairbanks.

The new railroad is unsuccessful. It was planned and seventy-three miles of it built by John Ballaine. He failed and the line went to the Guggenheims. They sold it to the Government for $1,000,000, and it took $4,500,000 to make it usable. On top of that we have poured in $50,000,000 and run the road on through the Matanuska coal beds up to Fairbanks. Ballaine had started the town of Seward on Resurrection Bay with its 100 fathoms of water.

Now the charge is made by Ballaine that the "Seattle crowd," backed by the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, is bent on destroying Seward as a port, moving the capital from Juneau to nine-year-old Anchorage and making that town the port, the capital and the real metropolis. The Guggenheims are charged with hampering the work of the Government and duping the United States in divers ways. Rate discriminations are charged, and altogether there appear to be the makings of a first-class row.

In 1921 all this was about to be aired, but the hearings on proposed consolidation of Alaskan bureaus was rather hurriedly adjourned. The quarrel was carefully smothered at that time, only to break out again as soon as the presidential party set foot in the Territory.

Secretaries Hoover, Work and Wallace will, of course, do their best to patch it up. It is, however, so badly mixed, crossed and tangled with financial rows, political feuds, personal hatreds, regional quarrels and official jealousies that it may be unpatchable.

Hearings are now under way, but they may do no more than let enough air into the smoldering fire to make it blaze higher. If these fail to bring peace, agreement and understanding, all the pressure, political and otherwise, that can be brought to bear cannot keep the lid from flying off the Alaskan row in the sixty-eighth Congress—Public Ledger.

sterilized jars after you have cut each peach in half and removed pit. Pour over them, in a jar, a hot medium thick sirup made by boiling three quarts of granulated sugar and two quarts of water together for ten minutes. Partially seal, process in boiling water for 15 minutes, completely seal, and store.

Peach Marmalade: Remove skins from peaches as above described. Then halve, stone and weigh the fruit. For every pound, set aside a pound of sugar, to be added later. Put the weighed fruit-pulp (with a few kernels, for flavor) into an agate bottle which has been moistened inside to prevent burning and heat the fruit slowly, mashing with a wooden spoon. Stir to avoid burning, and when soft and thick it is time to add the sugar. Mix well and boil slowly, until the juice is jelly-like when you test it by putting a few drops on a plate. Then turn the marmalade into hot, sterilized jelly glasses and cover, when cold, with melted paraffine.

Pear-Pineapple Butter: Pare, core and quarter four quarts of pears. Pare two large pineapples and remove eyes. Put both the pears and the pineapples through your food-chopper and place the mixture in a porcelain-lined kettle. Add eight cups (four pounds) of granulated sugar and boil till clear. Seal in glasses when cold, like jelly. Very delicious.

Pour over the pears a medium-thick sirup made by boiling two quarts of water and three quarts of sugar together for ten minutes. Have this sirup come to within one-fourth inch of jar-top then adjust sterilized glass covers over new rubbers which have been dipped swiftly into hot water, and partially seal the jar; process it for 20 minutes in boiling water which rises almost to jar-top, then completely seal, invert to test for leaks, and store.

Let us go out to play—and in our favorite books find adventures that will lift us on our toes and lead us around the world.

Let us find a heart somewhere and play in it. Perhaps it is filled with ache and want. Let us bring to it sunshine and cheer. By giving it companionship and understanding, light will stream in and then play will be the order of the day—and happiness the reward.

Let us go out to play. Our muscles are tired from long inactivity, our blood slow from too little air and sun.

Even as we work in our offices, may we not hesitate for a moment every once in a while—and in our thoughts—run out to play for a brief spell.

This human machine of yours is no different from those that are made by it. It must be kept loose and free and oiled by frequent play.

Let us go out to play. And then come back to work, happy and refreshed.

ESTIMATE 75,000
WILL SEE LEONARD
AND TENDLER FIGHT

New York, July 20.—More than $500,000 will be paid by boxing enthusiasts to see the Benny Leonard-Lex Tendler championship bout next Monday night and Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the contest today told why fight fans will pay this amount.

"There will be three distinct classes of people who will help to make up this amount," the promoter explained. "First there will be the Leonard following and there is a veritable legion of Leonard admirers. There are rabid Leonard fans. Fight mad when the name of Leonard is mentioned. This following will be up to the fight strong. "Then there is the crowd that always goes to a fight in the expectation of seeing a championship change hands. Reports have appeared from time to time that Leonard has retrogressed and is not the invincible fighter he once was. The element of chance plays a large part in sports. And thousands will view the contest on the chance that Tendler will put one over and win the title.

"Third there is that large crowd of lovers of boxing who will attend any fight which promises an exhibition of the manly art such as Leonard and Tendler no doubt will give. And there you are."

Fully 75,000 are expected to view the fight. This will be the largest gathering of fans ever assembled to see a fight in New York state. Boyle's Thirty Acres, across the river in Jersey City has played to larger houses but no fight in this state has played to a 75,000 crowd. Tickets, Johnson said, are going extremely fast with the interest in the bout even greater than he had anticipated.

The advance sale has already reached close to the $300,000 mark. He said the receipts would easily come to the half million mark. Betting odds of 2 to 1 favor Leonard, with 1 to 2 that he will knock out Tendler.

FARMER HAS TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

"I don't think anybody ever suffered more pain than I have. Twice I was operated for gall stones and a third operation was advised. A friend in Iowa wrote me how he was cured by taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I took a bottle on his advice with good results and have also taken the full course. My pains are all gone and I feel I am permanently cured." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre & Hemphill's and druggists everywhere. adv

IS "WILD BULL" FIGHTING FOR HER?

Miss Petrona La Rosa, of Evanston, Ill., may be the goal toward which Luis Angel Firpo, "Wild Bull of the Pampas," is aiming in his fighting career. She went to school with the great South American fighter and was his childhood sweetheart.

It is admitted that a quarrel with the fighter led to her coming to America, and it is rumored it was only then he decided to follow.

RESERVES TO MEET
MIDDLETOWN TEAM
ON LOT HERE SUNDAY

Fans who journey to the Cincinnati Avenue lot Sunday to see the Xenia Reserves and the Middletown Interstates hook up in a baseball game will see a struggle worth while as both teams are evenly matched.

The Reserves so far have played eight games, winning four and losing three while they were tied once. The Reserves have a nifty ball nine and will give the Interstates a real argument.

Owens who holds down the first sack for Manager Jesse Chambliss' outfit takes care of the initial bag in first class manner. Owens is a southpaw and makes some mighty good stops at the first sack. He also bats well and can generally be depended upon to clout the ball in a pinch.

Manager Chambliss has also added M. Leachey to his outfit, and he will more than likely play at short. McDonnell and Ackerman are also new additions to the team. The former is a pitcher while the latter is an outfielder.

Just who will pitch Sunday's game is not known but more than likely McDonnell will get the call. Wilson will catch while Owens will be found at first, E. Leachey at second, M. Leachey or Milburn at short, Ciphers or Botoff at third, while Shaw will be found in left field Haley or Ary in center and "Dewey" Ackerman in right.

The Reserves have been working hard for this game and all the play-

DOMESTIC TROUBLE
RESULTS IN DEATH
AND FATAL INJURY

Canton, O., July 20.—With one dead and one seriously injured, the end of two triangular domestic affairs reached their climax here today.

Mrs. Rosa Laschi, 36, is dead. Her husband is charged with killing her because as he told police, "she loves another, and wants to keep me in jail all the time."

Shikery Audy, 42, returned home last night from a trip and claims he discovered his landlord and his wife in the same room at midnight. Audy told police that he objected to this "bit of play" while he was out making a living and so he proceeded to load Thomas Hood with lead from an automatic.

Namy Abood, who lives with his family across the street heard the racket in the Audy home and joined the fight. A small hatchet was brought into play.

Thomas Abood is in the hospital and is not expected to live. Namy Abood, a brother and his wife were also in the hospital with serious wounds.

Audy is in jail pending outcome of the case.

When Your Gas
Bill Goes Up

Have a look and see if it isn't too much for what you are getting. Probably you can cut it materially without inconvenience to yourself.

Matches are cheaper than gas. When you are not using gas, why let it burn?

You cannot heat a liquid hotter than its boiling point. When the contents of your cooking utensil begin to boil, turn down the flame. Your money pays for the unnecessary heat.

Look For Leaks

Then have a look for gas leaks. Government engineers say about one foot of every six delivered to households is wasted in little leaks. They don't do anybody any good—and one dollar in every six is worth saving.

Maybe you are using appliances not originally intended for gas burning. That is expensive. They cannot deliver more than a third efficiency.

BROOKHART URGES RECOGNITION OF SOVIET REGIME

Washington, July 20.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart on reaching Washington went directly to the state department and urged Secretary Hughes to recognize the soviet government of Russia.

Senator Brookhart suggested as a preliminary step an effort on the part of the United States to revive trade relations, even before full diplomatic intercourse is resumed.

The senator in a half hour conference with Secretary Hughes made a full report on his personal investigation of the condition of the Russian government, declaring it to be the most stable government in Europe and its people happy and contented. Brookhart also gave Mr. Hughes the benefit of his 10 weeks' study of conditions in other countries in Europe, particularly France.

Senator Brookhart was understood to have taken up the question of an extra session with Secretary Hughes, urging its necessity upon the secretary and suggesting that he join in the request to the president for the call.

"If the administration turns a deaf ear to the cries of the farmers and defies the progressive forces," Senator Brookhart said in an interview, "control of the senate organization by the regular Republicans, the Old Guard, will be overturned when congress meets in December. The progressives hold the balance of power, which makes this upset possible through a combination with the Democrats."

Commenting on the political outlook as it now looks on the basis of Magnus Johnson's rout of the Republican and Democratic candidates in Minnesota, Senator Brookhart nominated Harding for president and Senator Underwood for vice president on a "stand pat ticket," and paid his respects to other presidential aspirants, including McAdoo and Ford, declaring he was for "Kenyon or bust." The senator said: "They might nominate Harding for president and Underwood for president on a 'stand pat ticket.' Then they could get all the stannifers, conservatives and reactionaries into one bunch. We would see that it was only a very small bunch."

"McAdoo doesn't strike me as much of a hope for the people," Senator Brookhart said in response to questions concerning the Democratic aspirant. "He would not draw many progressive votes. He would not even have a chance against Harding. With Harding and McAdoo running on the Republican and Democratic tickets, neither would have a chance. In that situation Ford would ride in on a third party ticket."

FAIR BOARD WILL MEET SATURDAY FOR ARRANGEMENTS

The Greene County Fair Board will meet Saturday afternoon at one o'clock at the Fair Grounds. Any one wishing to consult with the board is invited to meet with it at that time.

The poultry department, always a strong feature of the local fair, will be especially interesting this year. Mr. Thomas Faulkner, in charge of this department, has been striving for years to make local and honest showing of birds an outstanding feature of the department and has drawn a set of rules that will give much satisfaction to local exhibitors. This department has also added an egg law offering premiums for the best dozen brown and the best dozen white eggs, any kind.

Grant Miller, who is in charge of the spacious new Art Hall is planning for exhibits that will bring delight to the women of the county. This building will also house some of the Boys' and Girls Club work.

N. B. Lewis, a new member of the board will have charge of the Vegetable Hall. The one hundred bushel corn club show and his revision of the grain department will add interest to the department exhibit.

The Boys' and Girls' Calf Club, in charge of F. B. Turnbull and James H. Hawkins, will make a show well worth going miles to see, Fair officials say. There will be two classes, a junior yearling and senior calf class, with the best breeds competing, the Herefords, the Shorthorns and the Angus. The total prizes given by the Fair Board, the Breeders' Association and individuals will total over $500.00. At the close of the show the calves will be sold at public auction.

The Grange exhibit in charge of W. J. Engle, Joseph T. Hutchison and Joseph H. Smith will have seven granges competing for prizes aggregating $385.00. The Grange section is always one of the centers of interest on the grounds and will no doubt draw many grangers from beyond the county lines.

The Inter-City Quilt Club headed by Mr. Roy Ary promises to be a feature for those who enjoy this work. From the number of inquiries that are coming in, Wayne Smith of New Burlington and Nat Hunter of James-town, who have charge of the displays of autos and machinery, are expecting the largest exhibit ever arranged on the grounds.

Mr. Ernest Ireland, who is in charge of the gates, is making plans for the systematic parking of cars so as to eliminate all confusion. The new draw gate into the center field will be a great help in handling the machines and in systematizing the parking. It is claimed.

ANNUAL REUNION OF OHIO MARYLAND ASSOCIATION AUG. 15

J. A. Piper of this city is a member of the executive board of the Maryland Association of Ohio which will hold its twenty-sixth annual reunion at Forest Park, Dayton, Wednesday, August 15.

A committee on arrangements has prepared an interesting program which will begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, sun time.

A business session will be held in the morning, including reports of the secretary and treasurer and nomination of officers and the making up of a report on Necrology.

The afternoon session will consist of songs, music and an address on "Maryland" by Prof. A. E. Claggett, superintendent of Oakland School. There will be short talks by members and the annual election of officers. Members will bring basket lunches. The Park is located two miles north of Dayton on the Covington pike.

Samuel G. Claggett is president and James H. Bamber secretary of the Association.

WHITFIELD LOSES AGAIN.

Cleveland, July 20.—John L. Whitfield will not be taken outside Cuyahoga county to stand trial for the murder of Patrolman Griffin. Common Pleas Judge Baer overruled defense attorneys in their motion for a change of venue on the grounds of prejudice. Whitfield's trial is to open next Monday.

INCREASE OF 400 PER-CENT IS SHOWN AT PLAYGROUNDS

An increase in the weekly attendance at local playgrounds during one month of over 400 per cent is announced by the Community Recreation Association, as an indication of the popularity of the movement in this city.

Figures showing the attendance at the various playgrounds of the city, were announced at a recent meeting of the board. A table compiled by Secretary Earl W. Burner shows the relative increase at the playgrounds.

At the Orient Hill Playground the attendance has been first week, 121; second week, 194; third week, 133; fourth week, 269.

At the Willow Tree playground there has been a much larger attendance. First week 141; second week 294; third week, 359, and fourth week 378.

The Central High playground has only been open for two weeks but the results have been gratifying to the association. The first week at Central 253 people were present and the second week a total of 343 showing an increase of 104 in one week. Such facts point out the success of the playground movement in Xenia.

The board also has in mind the furthering of this project on a larger scale and the future holds great things in store for the children of Xenia.

ARMY DISH PROVES PALATABLE TO MEN DURING REUNION

Ex-soldiers, who a few short years ago spent the greater part of their spare time "cussing" army grub, are avidly of real "army slum gullion," when it was served to them at the reunion of Company F at the Fairgrounds, Wednesday.

Mess Sergeant James Curlett, who had charge of the mess, believed that five years during which the ex-soldiers had not tasted a bit of "slum" would whet their appetites for this favorite dish of the camp dining room or field kitchen.

So it was real "slum gullion" or "stew el rancho" that was served to the Company F reunionists at noon Wednesday. Seventy-five reunionists ate enough "slum" for 125 men according to the book's computation. Everybody returning for "seconds." One dipperful was all of the "slum" left.

Here are the ingredients of the Army's favorite dish: beef, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, paprika salt and pepper. According to Mess Sergeant Curlett it is not only good but nourishing. Although he didn't say so it is also easy to prepare, which probably accounts in part for its frequent appearance on the Army menu.

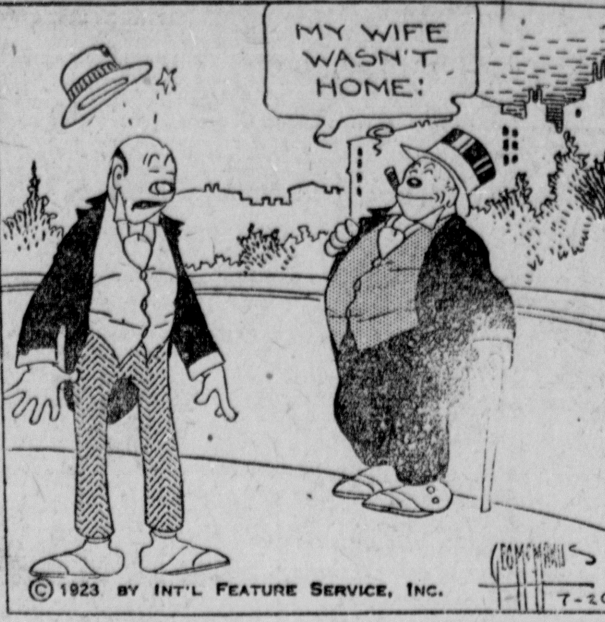

"Sea Turkey," "corn willy" and other features of camp diet were not on the menu, however.

FILES DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS.
Cincinnati, O., July 17.—Mrs. Beatrice McClelland has filed divorce proceedings against her husband, Noah C. McClelland. Latonia race track steward. Mrs. McClelland charges him with frequently threatening her life and with keeping a loaded revolver close at hand. The couple were married in Chicago in 1904 and have a daughter 17 years old.

red bone buttons strung on to a patent leather base. This type of dress may be worn very becomingly by a matron.

In the other model, a new and clever neckline does the trick. Here pink linen is employed, and the interesting lines of the bodice, and the pockets, are accentuated by two widths of old blue braid. This frock has also been made in tan and white gingham, with organdie band to complete the neckline and the opening down the front, with gingham to outline the edges.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Styles BY LENORE

Here are two inexpensive frocks that know how to be smart in spite of that fact. The first, made of light brown linen with double organdie collar, cuffs and vest, accomplishes the effect by a wholly novel idea in the way of a belt—which is made simply of a lot of flat

THE MISFIT

By Jane Plehps

NO DESIRE TO LIVE Chapter LI

On her narrow bed in the hospital, Natalie tossed, constantly muttering to the days when he courted her, at others crying out in resentment at his mother, talking of a "misfit" of cab-bages that could not be grafted into roses; of her work with Mr. Marshall, and going over her last day with Harwood; then babbling like the baby or calling her pet names, crooning over her, or going over her talk with Horace, reiterating her determination not to live with his mother, and so forth; talking also of Craig and Beverly.

"She must have had a cruel mother-in-law," the nurse said to the doctor. "Mothers-in-law are supposed to be cruel aren't they?" the doctor replied dryly. "I have found there is usually fault on both sides when people can't agree."

"She is very lovely, in spite of her being so ill," the nurse said, "and in such an unusual way. She is not at all a common type."

Etta had sent Natalie's mother word of her illness but she had broken her leg in an accident the day before she received the letter, so could not come to her. There was no one else, so Etta, in spite of her work, the care of her baby, visited the hospital daily.

It was several days before Natalie recognized her, and then it was but a wraith of the old Natalie who smiled wanly at her as she bent over the bed. "She will live if no further complications set in," the nurse told Etta. "But it will be a long slow convalescence."

She has burned out her strength with the long fever.

But Natalie seemed to have no wish to get well. She lay supine, never speaking unless spoken to, then only a few words, or a nod of her head. Finally the doctor told Etta.

"Unless she is roused in some way she will slip away from us yet. The will to live is lacking. Isn't there something you can do to rouse her?"

"I'll try," Etta said hopelessly.

Etta spoke of Horace, but save for a slow inquiring glance, as if she wondered why Etta bothered her, Natalie showed no reaction. She mentioned Mrs. Crandell, but no resentment lit Natalie's face, as invariably had been the case before her illness. It was as though both Horace and Mrs. Crandell were utter strangers to her—that they meant absolutely nothing in her life.

When Etta talked of the baby, Natalie brightened for a moment.

"Would you like to see her?" she asked.

Natalie nodded and smiled.

Etta told the doctor and he arranged she should bring the baby. Natalie's namesake. But after a moment's faintly smiling recognition, a weak attempt to pat the little creature, Natalie relapsed into her former listlessness, and the doctor motioned Etta to take the child away.

"She'll die, Clyde. The doctor says so, unless something is done to make her want to live," Etta told her husband.

Almost every day Etta wrote Natalie's mother. Now she wrote that her condition was serious, fearing they would blame her for not telling them if anything happened to Natalie.

"Oh, I feel so helpless," Etta moaned. And really Etta and Clyde were helpless. Not understanding the ways of the class to which Horace belonged, they did not know how to go about finding him to communicate with him. He was in Europe, hence unavailable.

Natalie never had told Etta of Craig Harper and the others she had met through Horace. Once she had mentioned Beverly Ralstonford, but in a way that intimated dislike, and Etta had paid no attention to the name, although now she desperately tried to recall it.

"If I even knew where the Crandell's made were I'd send for one of them," Etta said in desperation, after reading a letter from Natalie's mother scolding Horace for being away. That was all she knew, that he was in Europe, Natalie ill. Natalie had told her nothing of their trouble. Like many people of her class she was no letter writer, and Natalie had not thought it necessary to inform her. So she naturally felt indignant that Natalie should be alone when ill.
